Elizabeth Stevenson's second grade class at Charles B. Murphy Elementary learned about the "wonder," the mystery, and the majesty of the wetlands on Thursday.

Mary Anne Caldwell from Lynn Meadows Discovery Center in Gulfport passed out environmental materials to the students.

Lynn Meadows will distribute the materials to over 19,000 school children and 825 teachers in 52 schools in the three coastal counties.

In Hancock County, this involves over 2,000 children.

Students in first through third grades receive an environmental folder with the parent guide. The teacher packet contains eco-friendly materials for the class; information on Project Learning Tree, an environmental education teacher workshop on Feb. 14 here at Lynn Meadows; coupon for a free "Wetlands in a Bag", an environmental classroom activity; and announcement of our new "Wonder Filled Wetlands" exhibit opening on Feb. 7.

The folder program is sponsored by 44 local businesses. The major sponsors are Academy Sports and Outdoors, Cinemark and Wal-Mart. The businesses from Hancock County are Bookends Book Store, Exchange Club of Hancock County, Jim Blount's Floor Covering, Trendsetters and Co. and Williams Ledoux, D. D. S.

Environmental materials, educational projects and wetlands exhibit have been made possible by a grant from the Mississippi Coastal Impact Program (CIAP), administered by the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality and the Harrison County Board of Supervisors.

NASA optimistic about Stennis' future

'Return to flight' schedule still a go for September, October

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

NASA officials seemed optimistic about the future of Stennis Space Center at a press conference given after Wednesday's shuttle engine test. The test marked 1 million seconds of shuttle engine testing.

Space Shuttle Program manager Bill Parsons told the crowd that he had every indication that the anticipated "return to flight" schedule of September or October was still a go.

On the short term there is still a lot for the Space Center to do to get the Space Shuttle ready for a return to flight, Parsons said.

"Space shuttle main engine testing is just part of the space program," said new Space Center director retired Navy admiral Tom Donaldson. "It will take engines like we tested to day to go to the Moon and to Mars. We don't know what systems will be required ... all we know is we will need to lift a lot of material into space and we are confident that those engines will be tested here."

"We have a bright future," said assistant administrator of the Office of Space Flight William Ready, speaking of the future of Stennis.

Wednesday's engine test drew hundreds of spectators to the A-2 test stand at the Space Center.

The engine tested will go on to Kennedy Space Center to become a part of the Space Shuttle Discovery. Discovery is the second shuttle mission scheduled for the program's return to flight this fall.

Krewe of Kids gets ready for parade

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

For more than 20 years the Krewe of Kids have made it possible for every child to participate in the Mardi Gras celebrations.

This year the Krewe will roll from North Bay Elementary School on Feb. 14 at 11 a.m. All children are invited to participate. No motorized vehicles are allowed in the parade.

Bay Waveland School District Superintendent Kim Stasny will serve as Grand Marshall.

The parade will proceed from North Bay Elementary to Dunbar Village senior facility for a toast to the Krewe and the seniors, down Dunbar to Boardman, down Boardman to Leonard, down Leonard to Dunbar and then back to the school.

The Krewe was started by the Jacob family, handed down to the Jr. Auxiliary and then handed down to me said organizer Lisa Cowand. All kids are invited to participate. All they have to do is show up.

The Krewe is currently looking for a king and queen. Any child between the ages of 5 and 12 years of age may submit their names to Cowand at 1005 Dunbar, Bay St. Louis, MS. 39520 by Jan. 31.

A random drawing determines the winners. For more information call 228-467-0506.

Litter plagues county roads and costs taxpayers, official says

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

Recently, Hancock County Road Superintendent Roger Ladner said litter is a very big problem in the county.

"The county has been installing Anti-Litter signs throughout the area. We are hoping the signs will help, as litter crews cannot keep up with the trash," Ladner added.

Also, Hancock County Sheriff Steve Garber said, "We have given all deputies instructions to be aware of littering and to take necessary means to help prevent it."

For many years the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce has been pushing efforts to make Hancock County litter free.

The county on a weekly basis has two teams of trusties from the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility collecting along county roads, "They cannot keep up. They clean a road one day and before the end of the day it is litpayers money could be utilized in other projects."

Additionally in the county, the Mississippi Highway Department has a crew of trusties working daily collecting trash along

"It is hoped all citizens will realize the expense it costs to keep these crews working. Transportation, a guard, vehicle costs, etc. This taxpayers money could be utilized in other projects."

tered again," Ladner added.

Ladner continued, "It is hoped all citizens will realize the expense it costs to keep these crews working. Transportation, a guard, vehicle costs, etc. This tax-the highways.

The cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland also have crews collecting litter on a regular basis.

The Chamber's Beautification Committee at its January meeting set

Saturday, March 20 for the annual Spring Cleanup Day.

"This will be one week before the annual Mississippi Gulf Coast Pilgrimage, which is scheduled March 24 through April 3," Betsy Ashman, chamber beautification co-chair said.

Discussions were held about the various ways the cities, county and general public could join in making our county litter free at the January meeting.

The chamber will be contacting Zone Captains from previous cleanups in addition to enlisting the help in other sections of the county for the March cleanup.

Anyone interested in securing more information as to how they may be able to help can contact the chamber's office at 228-467-9048.

'Boil Water' notice lifted

Local officials and Steve Jones, spokesperson for the water system, lifted the "Boil Water" notice for people who live in the White Cypress Lakes subdivision.

Anyone who gets water from the system no longer needs to boil water prior to consumption.

Users were first advised to boil their drinking water on Jan. 20. Multiple tests performed by the Mississippi State Department of Health Laboratory indicate the water now meets the standards of the Safe Drinking Water Law.

Coffee Call set Jan. 28 at Casino Magic BSL

On Wednesday, Jan. 28, at 7:30 a.m. there will be a Hancock County Coffee Call sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

The Coffee Call will take place at Casino Magic's Cypress Ballroom in Bay St. Louis.

I understand the chamber is taking advanced reservations for the event and there are still some seats to be filled.

The cost of the wonderful breakfast buffet is $15 per person.

This is a great time to hear what our county leaders have planned for the year and future years ahead.

Also it will be a time to make new acquaintance and renew old friendships.

I hope to see you at the Coffee Call Wednesday morning.

It was good to hear and read about the National D-Day Museum's $120 million expansion that will quadruple its size and triple its exhibition space.

One of the forces behind the start of the D-Day Museum was the late author and educator Stephen Ambrose, a resident of Bay St. Louis.

It is great to see Ambrose's ground roots work continue to grow and bring the realities of World War II to the generations following that period.

Just like all communities of the United States and Allied Nations, World War II had a tremendous impact on families.

As a youngster I can recall the large number of Hancock Countians serving our country and the worries of family and friends. And there were those who never returned home again too.

Younger generations need to know the real stories and the National D-Day Museum is the place to visit.

I have been there and plan to go again in the near future.

It is good to see the advances being made by the Hancock Boys & Girls Club, as a director has been hired for the program.

Richie Santiago has been hired as the unit director and operations are well underway.

You know, there are lots of folks around who are retired and may want to give a little back to the community.

The new Boys and Girls Club at Second Street Elementary on Jan. 6, is in need of many volunteers. The after school program will extend to an all-day program during the summer.

Persons interested in further information, may contact Santiago at 228-463-9662 between 9:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. weekdays.

A lesson from George Washington

"The willingness with which our young people are likely to serve in any war, no matter how justified, shall be directly proportional to how they perceive the Veterans of earlier wars were treated and appreciated by their nation."

George Washington
No one can deny the wisdom of George Washington.

When making tough decisions about the future we must often consult the past.

My offices have received a large response from constituents who feel the same way about our veterans as George Washington did. They are concerned about

IN CONGRESS

By Representative Gene Taylor

the recent news that the Bush Administration was considering substantial increases in prescription drug fees for military retirees. This proposal is another slap in the face to our nation's veterans and military retirees, and is more evidence that the Administration severely undervalues their sacrifice and service.

It comes as no surprise that the same Administration that has continually cut taxes and created safe havens for wealthy companies to move overseas to avoid paying taxes, is now scrounging to pay for their record deficits by sticking military retirees with the bill.

The Administration also opposed the effort to permit disabled military retirees to concurrently draw their military pension and VA disability payments without offset. While the enactment of partial concurrent receipt was good news for some military retirees, this legislative victory happened despite a veto threat from the White House and the strong opposition of the House GOP leadership.

The ARTS celebrates first year in Hancock

THE ARTS, Hancock County Mississippi will have its first ever Annual Meeting on Wednesday Jan. 28, at the Bay St. Louis branch of the Hancock Library.

This marks a milestone in our organization and we want to celebrate it. Coffee and cake will be served at 5:30 giving members a chance to socialize before the meeting which begins promptly at 6 p.m.

Since the membership drive began last April, 127 individuals from all parts of Hancock County and beyond have joined.

Visual artists, writers, poets, musicians, performing artists, artisans and friends of the arts are all represented. Groups, such as the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre and the Diamondhead Performing Arts, are included as well.

On the agenda are a number of "firsts": presentation of our first annual report, our first members roster and our first election of new directors.

We will be discussing the results of the planning workshop, held in November and funded in part by the Mississippi Arts Commission, and outlining some exciting new projects for this year.

We have changed our website address to an easier name, www.hancock-art.com.

Check it out to learn more about our organization and the artist members. This past week our first newsletter was mailed out to all our members.

Additional copies are available in all branches of the Hancock Library.

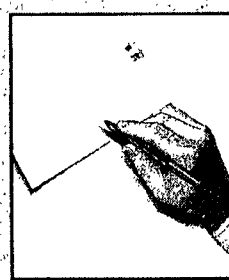

I hope to see as many members as possible at this meeting and, as always, the public is invited. Join us as we begin a new year of art filled activities. We are already off to a great start!

Scenic byways proposal is flawed

Being a resident of North Beach Boulevard, beginning in 1939 to 1985, at four separate locations, I am writing in response to the proposed Scenic Byways program.

The first home was purchased three years prior for $4,500. It included a three-story home with wrap-around porches, a tennis court, on 2.5 acres with over 500 foot frontage. Presently, that property has 5 homes on it. If you checked your local listings lately, you'd learn what such a property would cost today, astronomical!

People who purchase property on the beach do so for prestige, a beautiful view, and a tranquil environment, with easy access to the water activities for adults and children. The benefits come not without a cost, such as yearly hurricane threats, higher property taxes, flood insurance cost, and unannounced spring storms.

program. Nationally, the program includes such byways as the Natchez Trace Parkway, Creole Nature Trail and the River Road Scenic Byway.

Sue Chamberlain of the Hancock County Greenways Program hardly made it through her presentation before criticism began. Chamberlain outlined important features of the plan and told the audience that the program was a good way to get state and federal funding.

"Historically when the federal government is involved it affects property values," said one man. "What we are looking at, and I may be wrong, is an out and out grab of our property rights and property values ... one big giant boondoggle to take away our rights."

Many people expressed the fear that when state and federal government and various governing committees for the program become involved locally, that their rights as property owners would be affected adversely.

Many more called for the road to be withdrawn from the program before the time of choice for local property owners passed.

"Once a plan goes to a certain point you can't stop it ... this may be a good plan for some other area of the country, but not here ...," said a member of the Beachfront Association.

"All we want to know is how to stop this," said another attendee. "How do we say thanks, but no thanks," said another.

People also expressed their discontent with the fact that they were not informed of the plan immediately, when Beach Blvd. was first nominated. Many said they felt left out of plans going on behind the scenes.

"What is frustrating is that that someone made the decision to apply for this and what is left to the citizens is a secondary status," said a man who identified himself as a property owner on the beach. "For those who live on along the beach what is our solution who choose not to have federal funds and federal regulations."

Besides planners, about the only person speaking out in favor of the project was one woman who said she would like to see more parking along the beach road.

After nearly an hour of comments District 4 Supervisor Steve Seymour came forward.

"I think in this public hearing we are pretty much getting the idea of the people," Seymour said. "I am a public official and so the voice of the people and if this is not something the people want we are not going to shove it down their throats."

"That is two voices," said District 1 Supervisor David Yarborough.

The meeting ended without any clear indication of just what the next step, if any, would be.

date. Attorneys for the two cities said they hoped to be able to negotiate at least some of the conflicts before the pre-trial conference.

All dates are subject to publication and all will be held at the Chancery Court on Hwy. 90, unless otherwise indicated. Thomas chose to exercise the court's right to consolidate the two cases, though each city retained their right of a separate appeal.

Donald Rafferty and Jerry Mills are representing the City of Bay St. Louis and Zach Butterworth and Chad Mask are representing the City of Waveland.

Also appearing in court were the two chairman's of annexation opposition groups, Johanna Spicuzza of the Fight Annexation Committee and Lynn Bell representing the Garden Isles neighborhood. Individuals opposing annexation were also present.

Thomas asked those opposing annexation to read their names into the court record and, to expedite future proceedings, to elect a chairman to represent all the individuals opposing the annexation.

The chairman would be able to voice the opposition at future court proceedings, Thomas said, though he did encourage the group to seek counsel.

Bell asked Thomas to allow two representatives because, she said, her group was opposing only the annexation by Bay St. Louis, whereas the Fight Annexation Committee was opposing both cities. Thomas agreed. Attorneys for the two cities graciously offered to provide the group with updates on proceedings and copies of all information filed with the court. Thomas advised the attorneys to keep the elected chairman informed of all details and correspondence.

Bay St. Louis is attempting to almost double the physical size of the city by annexing all unincorporated territory east of Hwy. 603 and both sides of the business corridor of that highway, plus an area on both sides of Hwy. 603 above I-10. Waveland is attempting to annex the west side of the Hwy. 603 business corridor and adjoining neighborhoods, plus an area on the east side of Hwy. 603 just south of I-10 and both sides of the corridor just north of I-10.

Opponents submitted a petition to the court at a hearing earlier this fall and have been actively trying to raise money for counsel.

standing warrant for Byron J. Saucier, 18, of Bay St. Louis for the alleged sale of a controlled substance (crack cocaine). Saucier is also facing a no bond due to a previous controlled substance violation," the report said.

A reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest of Saucier. Anyone with information are asked to call the task force at 457-5683, Varnell and McNeal's release said.

In other task force activities, on Wednesday, agents arrested Michael Perkins, 36, 120 Shelia Drive, Bay St. Louis, at Bay Municipal Court on a felony warrant for the alleged sale of a controlled substance, (crack cocaine), police chiefs report.

"Perkins was making an appearance for a separate charge for shoplifting, and was also out on bond for a previous charge for the alleged sale of a controlled substance. No bond was placed on Perkins, as he will be facing a possible habitual enhanced penalties," Varnell and McNeal said.

of our nation's service personnel are currently serving in hostile conditions in Iraq and Afghanistan. Many other men and women in uniform will soon be asked to join them there and elsewhere in support of the global war on terrorism.

Unfortunately, these commitments are not expected to end any time soon. At a time when we are asking so much of so many brave men and women, it makes no sense to break faith with those who have served before them. After all, today's troops are tomorrow's veterans. When the Administration acts to withhold earned compensation and benefits for retirees and veterans, it ultimately weakens our nation's defense.

It is apparent that the large response against the prescription drug fee increase for military retirees was heard by the White House. Recent reports indicate that the proposal has been dropped from the 2005 budget. However, many of those same reports indicate that the White House may attempt to push the co-payment increase next year. We must continue to remind those in power of the sacrifices and achievements of these Americans.

As the Congressman elected to represent South Mississippi, I will continue to be a strong voice for our military personnel and veterans.

proposed byways project, I learned of increased traffic, rest areas, turn-outs, passing lanes, overlooks and more. Also, county maintenance fund dollars will be spent to develop the plan and maintain the new improvements.

How much privately-owned beachfront property will owners have to give up? Will the overlooks deprive the resident of their view that they paid so highly for?

The program admits traffic will increase. Is increased traffic in a residential and recreational area a smart idea?

The Grand Canyon does not have an overlook. If a person stands at sea level, where they'll be, the furthest the human eye can see is 20 miles, approximately. The higher above sea level, the further you can see. How high will the proposed overlooks be? Will they obstruct the view of the beach front residents? Will the rest areas also obstruct a residents' view?

The whole proposal seems flawed and targeted only to attract tourist. I can't see any benefit for the residents of Hancock County. Is it possible there may be other Government-funded programs that would benefit the residents of this county more?

Don't waste my tax dollars!

Rep. Taylor to welcome attendees at Affordable Housing Conference

The Honorable Congressman Gene Taylor is scheduled to welcome an anticipated group of more than 300 housing-related professionals at Mississippi's Twelfth Annual Affordable Housing Conference at 8 a.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 27.

Hosted by Mississippi Home Corporation (MHC), the state's housing finance authority, this three-day annual event will take place Jan. 26-28 at the Grand Casino Biloxi's Bayview Hotel.

"This annual conference enhances the state's efforts of providing an opportunity for all Mississippians to obtain the American dream of home ownership," said

Congressman Taylor. "Those housing-related professionals attending the conference will be challenged to help make this dream become a reality for future homebuyers."

The pro-conference agenda, set for Monday, Jan. 26, is designed for those who have an interest in MHC's Housing Tax Credit Program.

The day will begin with a basic Tax Credit workshop and will end with the presentation of the 2004 Tax Credit Qualified Allocation Plan.

"Our goal with this year's annual housing conference is to allow conference attendees an opportunity to learn about new affordable housing initiatives that are making a difference in our communities, develop partnering strategies to create affordable housing within their own community, and to become more aware of the emerging housing market as they continue to make their 'Community Works'," said Dianne Bolen, MHC's executive director.

Other invited keynote speakers for the conference are the Honorable A.J. Holloway, mayor of Biloxi, and Phil Hardwick, coordinator of Capacity Development at the John C. Stennis Institute of Government.

For more information concerning Mississippi's 12th Annual Affordable Housing Conference, visit MHC's website at www.mshc.com.

MDOT implements internet permit system for commercial vehicles

The Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) has implemented an internet permit system to help companies nationwide acquire commercial vehicle permits quicker and easier, according to MDOT's Chief of Law Enforcement Willie Huff.

A little over a month ago, it took anywhere from fifteen minutes to three days - possibly more - to acquire a commercial vehicle permit. Drivers had to call in to MDOT Law Enforcement Division's permit office and wait to speak to a technician. Plus, they could only call during office hours - 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Now, a permit is just a click away - literally.

Beginning in November, MDOT implemented ExpressPass - an on-line permit system for commercial vehicles. ExpressPass eliminates the telephone calls and waiting process. And, it's available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

According to Huff, MDOT issues over 120,000 permits a year. Before ExpressPass, eight to ten technicians answered the phone averaging 300-500 phone calls a day.

"We had 880 abandoned calls in November of 2002 because of the length of time callers had to wait to speak to a technician, Huff said. "We started the internet program in November of this year, and we have only had 220 abandoned calls. We've seen at 75 percent reduction in dealing with disgruntled customers - it's amazing."

Huff also points out that the system was created in-house. MDOT staff developed and maintains the site. The project started over two years ago. In January of this year, MDOT conducted a pilot project with several area companies. The pilot went off without a hitch with 1,200 permits issued.

"We are so impressed with MDOT's ExpressPass system," said Jan Dowd with Bennett Motor Express, Inc., in McDonough, Ga. "It is by far the easiest and most concise permit ordering system on the web! This type of application is what's needed in our fast-paced industry and should be emulated by other state permit offices."

"We had a goal of 15 percent of permit seekers using ExpressPass in the first six months," Huff said. "We're already up to over 20 percent in just over a month. It's incredible."

To use the ExpressPass system, log onto www.goMDOT.com and click on the ExpressPass icon.

Lady Tigers fall 61-49 to Harrison Central

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Bay High Lady Tigers dropped a non-division game on the road against the traditional Red Rebelettes of Harrison Central on Friday, Jan. 23, by the score of 61-49.

Bay High head coach Debbie Triplett stated, "We had way too many turnovers and did not protect the basketball. There were a couple of times where we could have taken the lead but we missed some baskets. We have to get back to work down the stretch and cut down on our turnovers. We also had our work cut out for us against their big inside player Shanea Cotton. She was tough to match up with."

It took almost a minute and a half for one team to score in the game. Bay High's Felicia Thomas sank a trey to start the game. But, Harrison Central took a quick 7-3 lead before the Lady Tigers chipped away at the Red Rebelettes. Kendra Reed nailed her second three-pointer of the period with 12 left in the opening period to give Bay High a 13-12 advantage.

Reed continued her hot hand in the second period as she scored 11 points which gave Bay High a 24-22 advantage at halftime.

The Red Rebelettes took a 42-39 lead at the end of three periods behind the inside scoring of Cotton and Carmen Dawson. Destiny Porter gave Bay High their final lead of the game at 45-44 with 4:54 left in the game. Harrison Central went on a 12-0 run before Bay High scored another point.

Kendra Reed scored 23 points to lead the Lady Tigers, including five 3-pointers. Destiny Porter added 13 points. The loss dropped the Lady Tigers to 17-4 overall.

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws improved to 18-5 overall and 7-2 in Division 8 Clas 4A with a 69-61 win over D'Iberville on the road on Thursday, Jan. 22.

The Rocks were led by four double-digit scorers. Mario Faranda paced SSC with 16 points followed by Rob Murray with 14 points while Darius Acker and Tony Silva each had 13 points.

Pass Christian swept the Vancleave Bulldogs in high school basketball action. In the girls game, the Lady Pirates were led by Kellie Martin's triple double of 18 points, 13 rebounds and 10 blocked shots. Martin's efforts helped Pass Christian improve to 6-11 overall and 2-4 in division play. Ishanti Saucier scored 23 points to lead all scorers for the Lady Pirates. Kenyatta Woods added 11 points and 6 assists while Tomeka Fields scored 11 points and 7 assists.

In the boys game, the Pirates defeated Vancleave 73-48. Billy Crawford scored 21 points as the Pirates improved to 14-6 and 7-1 in the division. Chad Musgrove added 13 points and John Childs scored 12 points.

On Tuesday, Jan. 20, the Pirates split a pair of games with the D'Iberville Warriors. The Lady Pirates fell to the Lady Warriors 57-40 while the boys defeated D'Iberville 64-62 in division action.

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws soccer team tallied two wins earlier in the week. SSC defeated Oak Grove 2-0 on January 19th. Michael Kivlan scored a goal on a penalty kick and tallied an assist in the win. Andrew Smith-Parker recorded the other goal. Sean Olsen had the shutout in goal for SSC.

On Jan. 20, the Rocks blanked the Pirates of Pass Christian 8-0 to improve to 19-3-1 on the season. Brock Kelly tallied the hat trick. Josh Lingsch scored twice while Marc belizaire, Patrick Donohoe and Devin Caboni all scored once in the game. Sean Olsen tallied his 12th shutout of the season in goal for the Rocks.

SSC will host Division 5 runner-up Petal on Jan. 27 in the first round of the state playoffs. OLA will also host the Division 5 runner-up on Jan. 27.

PRCC splits with Co-Lin in South Division battles

Pearl River Community College split with rival Copiah-Lincoln recently in women's and men's MACJC South Division basketball action.

The Lady Wildcats fell 83-63 to the Lady Wolves to even their overall record to 7-7 and 2-2 in division play, while the Wildcats pulled out a 69-68 squeaker to improve to 9-5 and 3-1.

Carmen Labat of Bay High paced the Lady Wildcats with 20 points, while Kim Winfrey of Oak Grove and Ashley Smith of Beaumont, Tex., added 10 each. Kira Tillman of Poplarville High scored 8, Sonya Henderson of Wayne County 7, Monique Dale of South Jones 6, and Nikki Smith of Poplarville High 2.

In the men's game, things were deadlocked at 33-33 at the intermission, but PRCC took the second half 36-35 to pull out the nailbiter. Larry Brackins of Dothan, Ala., paced the Wildcats with 24 points, while Carlos Cole of Hattiesburg High added 15, Ray Selva of Baton Rouge 8, Jason Simmons of Hattiesburg High, Ethan Smith of Poplarville High, and Jonathan Williams of Stone County, 3 a piece; and Jeremy Goff of Picayune High and Alvin Smith of Forrest County AHS, 2 each.

In a Monday night showdown, Mississippi Gulf Coast freshman Courtney Brown sank a trey at the final buzzer to KO a late Pearl River go-ahead rally to give the visiting Bulldogs a 63-62 MACJC South Division victory in M.R. White Coliseum.

Gulf Coast led practically the entire game until the scrappy Wildcats, 8-4 and 1-2, put together a 19-6 comeback spurt in the final four minutes to go up 62-60 with 13 seconds left. The Bulldogs answered with Brown's trey to ice the victory with no time remaining.

In the women's game, Pearl River pounded the Lady Bulldogs 90-74 to improve to 7-6 and 2-1 with four Lady Wildcats hitting in double figures. Mississippi Gulf Coast dropped to 11-3 and 1-2. In the men's game, Pearl River led for the first 10 minutes, but Justin Turner's bucket with 9:35 left in the half put the Bulldogs up 12-11.

Turner's effort kicked off a 16-5 run, capped by Al Washington's trey in the final seconds to make it 28-16 Gulf Coast at the intermission.

Tommy Biggoms sank a pair of foul shots with 3:32 left to put the Bulldogs up by 11, 54-43, but the Wildcats answered with its comeback run. Jonathan Williams of Stone County hit two of his three treys during the scoring surge with his last one putting PRCC up 59-58 with 40 seconds left. Carlos Cole of Hattiesburg High added a bucket, then Brown's goal with 15 seconds left pulled Perk to within one. Kitt Jones of Forrest County AHS hit a foul shot to make it 62-60, setting the stage for Brown's game-winning 3-pointer.

In the women's game, Pearl River never trailed during the game. The Lady Wildcats led by as many as 26 points, 49-23, with 2:25 left in the first half, but Gulf Coast closed out the half with a 4-0 run to make it 49-27 PRCC at the intermission.

Pearl River built its lead to a game-high 34 points early in the second half when Sonya Henderson of Wayne County hit a bucket to make it 63-29 with 15:10 left, but the Lady Bulldogs bounced back.

Seven minutes later, Katie Kogel's trey capped a 22-12 Perk run to cut the Lady Wildcats' lead to 20, 71-51, with 8:10 remaining. The Lady Bulldogs continued to chip away at PRCC's lead, putting together a 23-14 run to cut the Lady Wildcats' lead to 85-74, but that was as close as Perk could get.

Carmen Labat of Bay High paced the Lady Wildcats with 20 points (1 trey), while Kira Tillman of Poplarville High added 14 and grabbed a team-high 6 boards.

A View So Far

Views From a Front Porch

LOOMING: An apparent elevation of distant terrestrial objects caused by abnormal atmospheric refraction. Because of looming, objects below the horizon are sometimes visible.

(From Glossary of Oceanographic Terms, Naval Ocean Office, 1968)

We have had some unusually clear days this winter. Rare days when the whole world seemed to have a sharp, remarkable clearness, a clean sparkle. On these clear days walking on the beach or sitting on the porch watching the waters of the Sound has been a curious pleasure.

It all has to do with the view.

Ordinarily, there are limits to how well you can see things far out in the Sound. There is usually a large amount of moisture in the air and as you look to the horizon things become distorted and shimmer. It's different from looking up in the sky at a high flying aircraft. Most of the atmospheric moisture lies in the first 6,000 or so feet, after that there is very little. As a result an aircraft at three or four miles altitude is separated from your view by only about a mile of moisture and the aircraft's image is fairly sharp.

However, when you look at the horizon, you are looking through miles and miles of continuous moisture. Even with the most powerful of glasses, details of ships on the horizon are usually blurred and indistinct. As a result, mirage effects are normal, sometimes so pronounced that objects appear upside down or split.

However, if the day is somewhat clearer than normal, I can sit on our porch and see the tops of the trees on the western end of Cat Island. On the extremely clear winter days we have had lately, the amount of moisture is well below normal and the trees on Cat Island appear to us in especially sharp relief. This is to be expected, but what is unusual in our recent viewing is that we are not only seeing the trees at the western end of Cat Island, we are quite clearly seeing what appeared to be all of

Simple and stark, the set offers little to jump-start the imagination. The costumes are dark and uniform. All the elaborate spectacles of theater have been peeled away.

Yet, "The Laramie Project" remains the most powerful production I have ever seen, and I am confident it will be the most meaningful and poignant play I will ever do.

Its content, by nature, is a tragedy; however, drama, horror and comedy have fused together to form a work that cannot be lumped into any one category. In essence, "The Laramie Project" is a tapestry.

Human emotions — hate, sorrow, joy and love — are woven tightly into this play, creating a sense of reality that can only be carved from actual life.

"The Laramie Project" is not a fairytale. It is not a work of fiction. Quite simply, this play shares the truth about the many aspects of humanity. It is a tale of a town plunged into the national spotlight after the brutal beating and murder of a young man named Matthew Shepard. The dialogue was cut from actual interviews with the residents of Laramie, Wyoming, where this tragic event occurred.

Every rehearsal, I must remind myself that these words were actually spoken. The doctor I portray actually worked on Matthew Shepard's bloody body. The 19-year-old man I portray actually aided in the beating and death of Matthew Shepard. Every single word I speak means something to the person who originally spoke it.

For this reason, performing in this play has been a humbling experience for me as an actor and as a human being. My fellow performers have also found enlightenment within the texts of "The Laramie Project."

"The most important thing I've learned from this play is that one bad deed can affect the world,

Raised bed gardening provides beauty in '04

Southern Gardening

by Norman Winter
MSU Horticulturist

The key to happiness with flowers in 2004 may depend on raised beds.

Twenty years ago the phrase "raised bed gardening" conjured up visions of railroad or landscape timbers encompassing the vegetable garden. The reasons were simple: the soil was yucky, and these walls of wood could hold in the perfect organic and topsoil blends brought in by a truck.

From the standpoint of flowers, the ultimate raised bed is a large container filled with a good, light potting mix and several species of flowers. How many of us as gardeners find sizzle with flowers in a container but fizzle with those same flowers in the landscape?

I encourage beginning gardeners to visualize their flower bed as a pot 8 to 10 inches high but perhaps covering 100 square feet. In other words, create a large horizontal pot.

Very few plants can thrive by simply digging a hole and planting. Most of us do not have the

Gaits to host volunteer training session Jan. 31

Gaits to Success, which operates S o u t h Mississippi's only therapeutic horseback riding program for the handicapped, needs more volunteers to help support the program. Gaits is a member of the North America Riding for the Handicapped Association.

The nonprofit organization operates out of a stable in Kiln on Kiln-Picayune Road about 1.5 miles west of Mississippi 603. It has a fenced, covered arena and handicapped-accessible restrooms.

Volunteers help out by working with horses and riders. But horsemanship skills are not necessary to volunteer. Gaits also needs help with publicity, fundraising, special events, etc.

Gaits will have an orientation session and training workshop at the stable from 2 to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 31.

Carolyn Rhodes and Kathleen Mosteller will demonstrate proper methods and handling of children and horses. They also will provide additional tips for seasoned volunteers.

Refreshments will be served.

For more information about the program, or to sign up to volunteer, call 228-467-1402.

because people all over the world were involved emotionally," said 15-year-old Jesse DiGiacomo, the youngest of the cast members. "It's hard to fathom, that the story of one boy in a small town in Wyoming almost overnight gets worldwide coverage. It gives me a new perspective on the true consequences of such an action."

With eight years of theater experience, DiGiacomo said "The Laramie Project" made him grow as an actor.

"I, along with the rest of the cast, have to play multiple roles — some with small lines and some with long monologues," the Pass Christian resident said. "And sometimes you have to instantly change character onstage, and you have to sell it to the audience. That is a real challenge, and I know that every one of us has grown as actors and actresses because of this play."

Rachel Stanley, a 20-year-old from Slidell, La., said this is her second "big" play as an actress.

"This play has made me realize that not only do I want to act more, but I also want to continue to do projects that have deep impacts and meanings and messages," she said. "This play has helped me to think a whole lot more about what I should love and appreciate in life. It has helped me to try not to dwell on some issues that may not actually be as huge a deal as I think."

For first-time actor Jim Welsh, "The Laramie Project" has been a welcome challenge.

"The most important thing I've learned from the play is how stimulating and artistically challenging acting can be," said the journalist, fiction writer and musician from Bay St. Louis. "The Laramie Project" is a highly unusual piece for local theater and extremely well written. It's also very challenging and difficult, since there are very few dialogue interactions among the characters and because each actor shifts gears rapidly to play multiple roles."

Donna Oakley, another first-time actor, said the play helped her realize that being productive after a tragedy like this is much better than being overwhelmed by one's emotions.

"I have learned that being sad or angry does nothing to help bring about change," the 52-year-old Clermont Harbor flesh-and-blood people.

Fellow cast member Bryan Vonder Bruegge agrees.

"This has been an opportunity to play roles that are not often available," said the Long Beach

The Olde Towne Players will donate 50 percent of the proceeds after expenses to the South Mississippi AIDS Taskforce resident said. "Action does."

With 20 years of acting experience, Clement Acker of Diamondhead said it has been a rewarding experience to play living, resident who has appeared in over 50 shows. "These are very demanding and complex characters, and they are real people, and the show makes it impossible for you to forget that."

Portraying real people has also affected performer Sandy Higdon, who has been acting for 36 years.

"You really can't say how you would feel (in a situation like this) until you've been in the position of a juror or a judge or a policeman, a clergyman or a parent," she said. "I've done many plays and this has been an interesting concept — portraying many real people. It's a big challenge because a lot of feeling, expression and emotion has to be compressed in sometimes one line."

With its portrayal of actual people and its liberal use of human emotions, "The Laramie Project" offers a unique performance that cast members believe will benefit audiences.

"If there is one person who is changed for the better, this play has done its job," said Amanda Acker. "The people of Bay St. Louis need to hear and see this message just like everyone else in the world."

Martin Booda of Diamondhead said the play should be well received in Bay St. Louis.

"There is a greater likelihood of a thinking audience that would benefit from the production than anywhere nearby," said Booda, an actor for over 20 years.

Joyce Graves, a performer from Pass Christian, hopes the play's message about hate will touch the audience.

"It is good for everyone to see what happens when our prejudices of people can bring hatred to the forefront," said Graves, who has starred in several plays with The People Program in New Orleans. "Maybe, just maybe, people with a narrow window on reality will find some empathy for these true-to-life characters."

Like my fellow cast members, I hope those who attend this performance will realize the devastating effects of hatred. I hope they realize the value of human life. Most of all, I hope they grasp the beauty of humanity — to love, to grow and to hope.

ideal soil for annual or perennial bedding plants. Roots of bedding plants have to penetrate soils quickly, anchor plants and absorb water and nutrients, often under adverse conditions.

In many cases the lots where our homes are sitting have had the topsoil scraped off and a material that is hardly suitable for plant life brought in for the foundation. Unfortunately that material also makes up the flower or shrub beds.

But all is not lost. We can have beautiful flowers — and many of them are tougher in our climate than we ever dreamed — but we have to give their roots a good home. With such a great importance aesthetically and financially to our home, it only makes sense to do the job right the first time.

Plants require oxygen, nutrients and water for proper growth. The soil texture plays the most important role in determining whether or not those three needs are met sufficiently to allow the plant to become established and perform to expectations.

Desirable soil has the ability to hold water while allowing for adequate drainage. It also provides adequate oxygen for root development. Tight, heavy clay soils challenge the best of gardeners.

Amending the planting area is one of the best ways to overcome these conditions. This can be done fairly easily and efficiently by adding organic matter such as leaf mold, compost, peat and sand. Incorporating a 3- to 4-inch layer of organic matter with the native soil allows the bed to be built up — a "raised" bed, if you wish — and provides excellent drainage.

Commercial landscapers have an easier way to perform this task. After the bed area is cleared of all unwanted vegetation, prepared landscape planting mixes are placed in the bed. These mixes, or blends, have some sort of retaining wall such as baked enamel edging, heavy-duty vinyl, timbers, pavers or rock.

Depending on the depth of the enclosure, tilling may or may not be necessary. Regardless, the soil will be loose for young plants. These mixes are available by the bag or in bulk at most garden centers.

Separating the raised beds from the turf area with a retaining wall makes a lot of sense. From an aesthetic standpoint, the flowers or shrubs stand out, and the grass even looks better.

It also makes sense from the maintenance standpoint. The beds normally have different water requirements than the turf area. Zoned irrigation is easily accomplished. But the real ease comes from using a string trimmer or edger around the bed's wall. This can be done in minutes versus the labor it would take to get rid of the grass that will encroach easily if no barrier is present.

Raised-bed gardening puts the joy back in planting flowers and shrubs. Your dollars will be wisely invested and your home will increase in beauty and value.

the trees to the east, perhaps of the entire part of the island that is angled to us. And we are not just seeing the tops of the trees; we are seeing the base of the trees and the underbrush.

We shouldn't be doing this.

Their are physical limitations on how far we should be able to see horizontally. The main limitation is that the earth is curved. Thus, anything on its surface drops quickly away from the horizontal view of a person standing on its surface. How far that person can see is decreed by the diameter of the earth and follows the same geometric rules we were taught in High School.

Under these geometric principals, a person standing at the shoreline of the Mississippi Sound should only be able to see the hulls of boats that are closer than three nautical miles away. Boats further away have their hulls below the beach person's viewable horizon and only the masts and superstructure of these distant boats should be viewable. This gives rise to the nautical expression "hull-down." I suppose that in our view of the tops of the Cat Island trees we are seeing the trees "trunk-down."

Although the viewing distance to the horizon increases as the person gets higher from the surface of the water, the seventeen or so feet height of our porch only adds a few miles to what I can see. But the distance to Cat Island is more than a few, it's much more than three miles, it's 12 miles.

Exit the exact purity of High School geometry; enter the extreme variability of atmospheric lenticular distortion.

This distortion results in a phenomenon called "looming," a phenomenon in which the refraction of the light by atmospheric conditions makes it possible to see objects that are well below the horizon.

The same phenomenon I see when I view objects far below my horizon has an interesting history in Antarctic research. Nathaniel Philbrick, talks about that in his recent book, Sea of Glory.

In that part of the book that deals with the at once widely questioned discovery of the Antarctic continent by the US ships lead by John Wilkes, Philbrick says, "... If it hadn't been for German mapmakers, who were the only ones to record the American claims and adopted the name of Wilkes Land, all trace of Wilkes' achievement might have been lost. Even as a series of British and Australian explorers — including Robert Scott, Ernest Shackleton, and Douglas Mawson — walked across the continent ..., Wilkes received no credit for his discoveries. What these explorers only gradually came to appreciate was the difficulty of judging distances in the clear, dust-free atmosphere of Antarctica. Objects that look just three to four miles away can be as many as 30 to 40 miles ... sometimes as many as two hundred miles away."

Well, we are certainly not seeing Antarctic snow covered peaks in our view from our porch during these clear days, but we have been seeing a goodly ways off.

While not as far as Wilkes' Antarctic mountains, nor even as far away as the eastern sections of Cat Island, yesterday, we were treated to a view of the entire oyster fleet dredging over Square Handkerchief Shoal.

At four miles away, they made quite a sight.

ANCIENT IDOLS!

THE PROPHETS IN THE BIBLE VILIFIED THE PAGAN WORSHIP OF FALSE GODS. ALL OF WHOM WERE REPRESENTED BY SOME FIGURE IN STONE, OR WOOD, OR METAL, OR BY PRECIOUS METALS. WHEN THE IDOL WAS METALLIC IT WAS FASHIONED BY RUNNING MELTED METAL INTO A MOLD, IN WHICH CASE THEY WERE CALLED "MOLTEN IMAGES." WHEN OF WOOD OR STONE THEY WERE MADE BY GRAVING TOOLS AND NATURALLY CALLED "GRAVEN IMAGES." THE WHOLE PROCESS OF MANUFACTURE IS SATIRICALLY DESCRIBED IN ISAIAH (44:9-20). SOME WERE SMALL OBJECTS, ESPECIALLY THOSE DESIGNED FOR USE IN THE HOUSEHOLD. SOME WERE AS LARGE AS A HUMAN BEING (1 SAM. 19:16) AND SOME WERE COLOSSAL LIKE THE HUGE GOLDEN IMAGE THAT WAS ERECTED BY NABUCHADNEZZAR IN THE PLAIN OF DURAI--WHICH ALMOST CAUSED THE DEATH OF SHADRACH, MESIAH, AND ABERNAGO. Great Caesar's Ghost!

Capitol Hill had all the appearances and trappings of the Roman Forum, the gladiatorial Colosseum, the Amen Corner of a bustling, reverberating basilica. With all the senators of the Forum jockeying to get a piece of the action, there was not an empty seat in the cavernous meeting room.

Flanked by his cabinet members, and clad in a dark suit and red tie, the President at the Forum bounced in jauntily, glad-handing legislators from both sides of the aisle. Even his political opponents wanted to touch him.

Yes, the magic moment of the State of the Union message was upon all assembled there, and even those who disagreed with his policies and modus operandi in the nation were hanging on the lips of the President of the Forum.

As soon as the speech would be over, the President's slaving opponents would respond in sharply adversarial fashion, seeking to undermine those of his statements which lend themselves to criticism, contradiction and denial.

But for now, they were content to join the others in attendance, together with tens of millions of people around the country and the globe, in a pointed appraisal of our overall condition and, indirectly, of the world's.

In our imaginations, we could all hear the stately, martial trumpets of the Roman Forum and the Colosseum. The President, the Commander in Chief of the Forum and the country, began with generic feel-good observations which won him the applause and affirmation of the Amen Corner from both aisles.

The moment the talk turned toward the conservative-hawkish side of the war in Iraq, those of the liberal-dovish views sat in stony silence as the President's Amen Corner erupted into delirious applause and affirmation.

Just as the President launched into the U.S. postwar actions in Iraq, one could sense gladiators from opposing sides of the aisle readying their oral weapons of defense and combat. Capitol Hill had become the Colosseum.

Showing their evident pique at being relegated to the role of an impotent captive audience, the liberal-dovish militants wore their very souls on sour faces twisted into the crooked lines of disagreement, dislike and disdain.

Surely Caesar's ghost and Cicero's specter moving about commemorating his oratorical fire and thunder in the Roman Forum must have in some small measure inspired the U.S. Commander in Chief as he made his own thunder.

Feeling his oats and growing in confidence with each applause explosion, the Forum President moved from the sticky topic of the war in Iraq to the related problem of security from terrorism. Both Amen Corners applauded, although the liberal-dovish balked at the Patriot Act and big expenses.

What was preeminently high drama in the Washington Forum/Colosseum proved to be low drama or no drama to many, no doubt of the liberal-dovish persuasion, who simply went about their workaday business during the nationwide telecast. They did their other TV, reading, Bible study, etc.

Worse, it was altogether mystifying that relatively few people in the social and religious circles I was moving in showed any awareness of or interest in the momentous implications of the State of the Union address.

Like it or not, this is our future, our country in which we have but one president at a time.

But such awareness of, such interest in and such excitement over the Forum President, the Washington Forum itself with its Colosseum military aspect, is invariably a child of political persuasion and of like and dislike of individual politicians and their supporters.

Then came the moment of truth: the intersecting of Church and State, of the City of Man and the City of God. Yes, the moment of the sacred had arrived with a bang. Nothing else in the entire address smacked of the sacred until the question of the ultimate priority of family life entered the picture.

"The sacredness marriage between one man and one woman must be preserved," the Forum President firmly assured all who would hear. This fired the Amen Corner into a standing, spirited, prolonged ovation.

Untouched by the President's statement on marriage was the question of whether gay couples could have a legalized union which would leave the sacredness of marriage intact and untampered with by such a union.

Here again, had the issue of legal gay unions been broached in a negative way, a bubbling undercurrent of the liberal-dovish adherents would have boiled to the surface in an explosion of protest and objection.

As the Forum President's address turned to the economy, to jobs, to tax cuts and welfare, the Amen Corner continued to interrupt after any daring statements of progress, promise and financial security, so that a speech of less than forty minutes became a delivery of almost an hour.

When the Washington Forum address came to its conclusion, not even enthusiastic inter-party backslaps could veil the obvious fact that it was back to business as usual with deep division and animosity between the aisles.

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Scripture Says...

By Ed Young

What is this life all about? What is the purpose of our being here?

"For everything there is a season a time for every matter under heaven. A time to be born, a time to die. A time to plant, a time to pluck up what is planted. A time to kill, a time to heal. A time to break down, a time to build up. A time to weep, an a time to laugh.

"A time to mourn, an a time to dance. A time to cast away stones, an a time to gather stones together. A time to embrace, an a time to refrain from embracing. A time to seek, an a time to lose. A time to cast away, an a time to keep. A time to rend, an a time to sew. A time to keep silence, an a time to speak. A time to love, an a time to hate. A time for war, an a time for peace." Ecc. 1-8

We do not have the mind of God. However, here or some hints from the scriptures.

God has made everything beautiful in this time; also he has put Eternity into man's mind, so that he cannot find out what God has done from the beginning to the end. Ecc. 3:11

"We don't have the mind of God." Yet, God says to all of us, "For I know the plans I have for you; plans for good and not for evil; to give you a future and a hope. Then you will call upon me, and come to pray to me, and I will hear you. You will seek me and find me; when you seek me with all your heart.

What is the life all about! To have fellowship with your heavenly Father. Is there anything worth more than that?

The "Word" for the Week
Why Christ died

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

It happened again. A fellow in our church had terrible pains in his abdomen. He was now in emergency surgery. So I went to the hospital. My wife accompanied me. We sat with the man's wife and their daughter. We waited. All sorts of things go through a person's mind at times like this.

The greatest hope lifts our hearts. The greatest fears torment us. It was evident in this case. This lady sat across from me in the waiting room wringing her hands. When the doctor finally came, he gave some totally unexpected news.

The man had a significant portion of his large intestine removed. Now he had a colostomy. The news was a shock. At first, it staggered us all. Then we sat and talked. Before my wife and I left the hospital, we all prayed together.

We prayed for strength, understanding, and healing. A few days later I received a note in the mail. It was a note that simply said, "Thanks for being there." Yes, one thing people want more than anything else is someone to be there and take them by the hand when the storm comes. Children are like this and so are adults. The Bible talks about the same thing.

"Christ also died for sins, once for all, the just for the unjust, in order that He might bring us to God" (1 Peter 3:18). Why did Christ die? He went to the cross so that He would be able to take people like you and me by the hand and lead us into the presence of God, the Father. What a beautiful picture this is. Jesus Christ comes to people whose lives are torn apart by sin. He takes them by the hand and He leads them into the presence of God.

My Way: A Musical Tribute to Frank Sinatra at Center Stage

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Sold-out houses, extended runs and standing ovations have greeted "My Way" in theatres across America. Now for the first time in Mississippi, Center Stage proudly presents this tribute to the one and only Frank Sinatra.

No one can dispute the influence of Frank Sinatra on popular music or that he helped etch memories into the hearts and minds of millions. Highlights from the crooner's extensive musical career are the focus of this musical tribute that opens at Center Stage in Biloxi Jan. 29 and runs through Feb. 8.

"My Way" was conceived by Todd Olson and David Grapes soon after Sinatra's death in 1998. Now audiences can't get enough of this hit that's been called the hottest musical review since "Forever Plaid."

Karen Abernathy, Keith Ballard, David Delk and Shari Pol will sing and dance their way into your hearts with their renditions of 57 of Sinatra's favorite songs. These tunes span this legendary singer's career from his big band days, to film, television, billboard top forty and of course the duets.

You'll hear songs like "Fly Me To The Moon," "I've Got The World On A String," "Love And Marriage," "Chicago," "New York, New York," "Strangers In The Night," "On The Sunny Side Of The Street," "My Way" and "All The Way."

Center Stage guest director and choreographer Ben Lokey uses his extensive experience in professional musical theatre and dance to get the most out these musical moments.

The song and dance is backed up by the "My Way" band headed up by musical director and upright bass player Donnie Taylor. Pianist Jonathan Szymanski and drummer Ken Williams round out the trio.

"My Way" is a fitting tribute to the music that made Sinatra a pop icon and is fondly remembered by many generations. So grab your coat and get your hat, leave your worries at the doorstep, and head to Center Stage.

"My Way" runs Jan. 29-31 and Feb. 1, 3-8, at Center Stage in Biloxi.

Call 228-388-6258 to make your reservations.

Scottish Society to honor Burns

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Would you believe that a poet is honored and remembered annually throughout the world?? That poet is Robert Burns, the Scottish Bard, whose life and works are the basis for the annual "Robert Burns Dinners" at the end of January each year by Scottish societies from North Carolina to New Zealand. "Burns Night" is a traditional feast of food and drink, celebrating the birth of the Scottish poet, Robert Burns, on January 25, 1759.

Scots all over the world enjoy the festival in their own enthusiastic style.

Burns Night celebrations traditionally revolve around the "haggis", an exclusively Scottish meat dish, served with turnips, "neeps". In the ceremony, the haggis is paraded around the hall, accompanied by bagpipers in full Scottish regalia; kilts, sporrums, skeindhus, glengarries, etc. Robert Burns' poem "Ode to a Haggis" is recited as the haggis is sliced open and served.

The Scottish Society of the Gulf Coast will celebrate its 20th annual Burns Night at the Christus Victor Lutheran Church Parish Hall on Highway 90 in Ocean Springs at 7:15 PM, Saturday, January 31st. Bagpipers, led by Elizabeth Campbell, of Gulfport, will provide appropriate music. Dinner by Broome's Catering Service of Ocean Springs will be enjoyed prior to the program honoring the great Scottish poet.

Tickets to the event are available from Terry Campbell, President, (896-8090) and from Lillian St. Amant, Treasurer (388-4210) and from Joan Wilson, Past President (875-2260). Tickets will be available only through January 28.

Orchid Show and Plant Sale Feb. 6-8

The Gulf Coast Orchid Society will hold its 24th annual "Orchid Show and Orchid Plant Sale" at Singing River Mall on Friday, February 6th, from Noon till 9pm, Saturday February 7th from 9am till 9pm, and Sunday February 8th from Noon till 5:30pm. There will be no admission charged.

Orchid plants and supplies will be sold by commercial growers from all areas of the southeast. The exhibits are constructed by the commercial dealers and also, orchid societies.

Many of the members are just learning about orchids and others who are experienced growers are there to help them.

Fairy Tales Come True

Create Your Dream Wedding

As a bride and groom, you want your wedding to be perfect. From the ceremony to the reception, you'll need to consider all the details. Whether a garden reception, an ultra-formal ceremony or a wedding/honeymoon combination, each wedding shares common characteristics upon which a couple must agree.

Once you've agreed to tie the knot, the days up until your wedding will be a whirlwind of activity. By knowing what tasks you should tackle now and which are better reserved for later, you'll have plenty of time to plan the wedding of your dreams.

This basic checklist can get you started on your way to a beautiful wedding day.

- Set the date — As soon as possible after getting engaged, you should select a wedding date and decide on the type of wedding you would like to have. From a traditional ceremony in a church to a surprise wedding, where guests are invited to a "party" that turns out to be a wedding, you can personalize the event and plan a wedding that reflects your lifestyles and interests.

- Reserve a location — Reserve the church or location of the ceremony soon after setting the date to ensure you can get married on the day you've chosen. Then, you need to reserve a reception location. Most party houses and reception halls have party planners and catering directors who can assist you in planning your dream wedding.

- Select a photographer — Every photographer has a different style. You should choose one who will accommodate your wishes, like taking the types and number of shots you want, attending both the ceremony and reception, and offering the album design you would like. The photographer's personality is very important — you will be spending an entire day with this person, so you should choose someone who will make you feel comfortable.

- Book reception entertainment — Select a band or disc jockey who will cater to everyone at the reception — both the younger and older generations. The musical selections should be diverse, and requests from the guests should be taken.

- Arrange wedding transportation — Whether it's a Rolls-Royce, stretch limo, horse and buggy, or double-decker bus, you should plan for transportation to and from the ceremony and to the reception for yourself and your attendants. Make reservations early, especially if you want a white car.

- Order dresses — Shopping for a wedding dress, headpiece and bridesmaid dresses is one of the most fun parts of the planning process. Choose a wedding dress that reflects your style and personality — and makes you look beautiful. When considering dresses for your attendants, you should opt for a style that complements your dress, as well as the women in your party.

- Choose a florist — Flowers can add an elegant touch to the wedding day, and every florist has a

The Groom, Best Man and Groomsmen Can Get Involved In the Planning, Too

Traditionally, women have done all the wedding planning. Crusty adages like "the groom just shows up," have long been conventional wisdom. However, as more couples plan their weddings together, grooms are playing a more active role.

"Contrary to popular belief, planning a wedding is a difficult task for the groom," says Mark Walerstein, founder of GroomsOnline (www.grooms-online.com), an informational Web site offering tips, pointers and timesaving hints designed to make the planning process more fun, relaxing and rewarding for the man. "The groom does have responsibilities, but we really are in the dark about what to do." Featuring wedding-day checklists, attire pointers and more, the site sheds light on just about every aspect of the wedding, from buying a tuxedo to organizing a bachelor party.

GROOMS ARE PLAYING a more active role in wedding planning.

There's even a full-service online gift shop for the gifts you need for the groomsmen, best man, ring bearer and bridesmaids too. Got friends or family who are sports fans? Order a personalized Louisville Slugger or Rawlings bats. Or get creative with a framed photo that displays a name and message on a favorite team's electronic scoreboard. Visit www.grooms-online-gifts.com for more ideas.

As you plan your upcoming nuptials, here are a few tips to keep in mind, courtesy of GroomsOnline.

- Finding a disc jockey — Wedding magazines, the yellow pages and of course, word-of-mouth referrals from family or friends are all great ways to find a DJ for your wedding. Set up a meeting with him or her before you make your decision to be sure that person is the best match for what you and your fiancée have in mind and there are no surprises. It's good to have an idea of what you're looking for when calling around. Don't forget to ask for references from previous clients.

- Choosing the first dance — This is the big one, that all-important first dance as husband and wife. Do you have two left feet? You might consider dance lessons so you can dance like a pro from start to finish. Pick something that's sentimental to both the bride and groom. If you're still stumped, choose a classic tune from an artist like Frank Sinatra or Nat "King" Cole.

- Losing your midsection — You'll be front and center before guests, not to mention a photographer. Lose weight for the big day with some self-discipline. Maintain a diet high in protein-enriched foods like eggs, bacon or cheese. Integrate exercise into your work day. Contract your abs when sitting for one minute, relax and repeat every 30 minutes. After work, mow the lawn instead of watching TV.

- Being the best man — The best man should help put the groom at ease. He'll keep tabs on the groomsmen — arrange for their fittings and ensure they look top-notch on the wedding day. He'll also plan the bachelor party. Traditional parties include smoking cigars and drinking. However, more grooms want memorable outings. Today's parties can range from skiing to camping. At the wedding, the best man toasts the couple. The keys to a good toast are speaking confidently, good eye contact and body language.

Bridal Beauty Countdown

Perfect Your Wedding Day

So much to do, so little time. If you thought you were busy before, just wait until you start planning your wedding. With so many choices to make, it's a small wonder most brides-to-be begin planning their nuptials 12 to 18 months before their special day.

And while making all those big decisions may seem like a full-time job in itself, it's important not to forget that the best way to ensure that you'll look your most radiant for your walk down the aisle is to start a personal beauty countdown at the same time. Here are some ideas to help get you started:

Skin — By preparing for your wedding day far in advance, you'll also have ample time to address skin imperfections like acne marks and scars.

There's no need to worry about these flaws spoiling your wedding photos. Now you can reduce the visibility of raised or discolored scars by making them appear flatter and closer to your skin's natural texture and color with a product like Sudden Change Scar Zone. Available at most drug, food and discount stores, it's formulated with both moisture-retaining liquid silicone and SPF 15 sunscreen. A unique, plastic surgeon-tested topical vanishing creme, it helps soften and smooth when massaged into the scar daily. Its SPF 15 sunscreen helps prevent the discoloration and redness that exposure to the sun can inflict on sensitive skin.

Hair — Consult with your hairdresser six months in advance about styles you're considering. At three months prior, have an in-depth discussion with your stylist about options that best suit your dress and headpiece. Finalize the look with a "test run" six weeks before the big day. Schedule color, perm or relaxing touch-up appointments for two weeks prior.

BEGIN A PERSONAL BEAUTY countdown as you start planning your nuptials to ensure you'll look your wedding day best.

Face — For a clear, glowing wedding day complexion, begin monthly facials. Six weeks prior to the wedding, increase the frequency to weekly. To further improve the appearance of your skin, increase the amount of water you drink every day and remember to cleanse, tone and moisturize twice daily. You might even try a weekly exfoliant or skin-refining facial. Three months before the wedding, consult with a professional makeup artist to determine which products and looks will work best for you. "Test run" your makeup one month before the special day.

Hands & Nails — Beautify and strengthen your nails with weekly manicures up to a day or two prior to the wedding.

Use a nourishing nail formula like Nutra Nail 5 to 7 Day Growth to help stimulate growth and condition nails. Pamper your hands with exfoliating treatments, and a week prior to the wedding, try a conditioning hot oil or paraffin treatment. With advance planning, it's easy to transform your skin, hair and nails into their wedding day best.

Preserve Wedding Memories Forever

He popped the question and you said "yes!" As soon as you can, you write a note about the happy occasion, and then download and print out photos of the two of you to share with family and friends. Perhaps you've already started a scrapbook about your courtship, which you'll share with your children and grandchildren someday. Photos, wedding invitations, love letters and other special papers preserve your personal history. Today, new paper preservatives on the market help ensure that your memories remain intact, to have and to hold forever.

If you're one of the 23 million Americans who celebrate life through scrapbooking, then you're aware of the papers, rubber stamps, stickers and other embellishments available. If you're not, then your upcoming wedding is an ideal time to get acquainted with your local scrapbooking store or craft chain. To get started, consult one of the dozens of scrapbooking magazines and instruction books available.

Photos are fundamental to any scrapbook. If you have a digital camera, you know that digital photography is easier to manipulate, reprint and share. You may have also discovered that photos printed at home are more likely to smear, run and fade than traditional photos, since computer printer inks are not moisture resistant. Krylon, a company which helps preserve fine art, recently introduced Preserve It!™, a digital photo and paper protectant that doubles the life of digital photos and other computer-generated documents. Archival-safe Preserve It protects digital photos from moisture damage, smudges and UV fading. It offers the same protection to any item printed by computer, fax, copier or other digital product, including a bride-to-be's thoughts and dreams.

You'll want to fill your scrapbook pages with more than photos. Love letters, ticket stubs, newspaper clippings, napkins or matchbooks from "your" restaurant, funny sayings or the lyrics from "your" song will help capture the magic of your romance. In the past, scrapbookers were concerned about the adverse affects acidic papers might have on their photos.

Today, Make It Acid-Free!™ from Krylon reduces this danger by neutralizing papers' acids.

This acid-free and scrapbooking-safe aerosol spray also extends the life of paper mementos by protecting them from becoming brittle.

When you discover how easy it is to be creative with the many paper products available, you might consider making custom wedding invitations on your home computer. Vellum, a sophisticated, translucent paper, is one of the hottest trends for wedding invitations. Don't let its seeming fragility scare you away. To ensure crisp, smudge-proof printing, spray Preserve It! on the vellum before printing and then again when you're done. Krylon Spray Adhesive offers a fast, no-show hold for vellum.

Another way to add instant sophistication to your invitations, envelopes, place cards and thank you notes is to embellish them with Krylon's acid-free Glitter Spray or Webbing Spray. Before sending out your invitations, use Preserve It! to protect handwritten envelopes or computer-generated mailing labels. And as you set up your new home, remember that Preserve It! can help protect important documents, like leases, deeds and contracts.

Paper is the traditional gift for a first wedding anniversary, and with a little planning and taking several precautions, the fragile papers that contain your wedding memories will last for many anniversaries to come.

A Month of Marriages

June has been the most popular month in which to get married for centuries. But that wasn't the reasoning behind the trend in the 1400s and 1500s. Then, most people bathed thoroughly only once a year. The annual bath occurred in May. In June, people still smelled fresh, making it a good time to hold special events, like weddings.

Bridal Showers Get a Cool, Fun Twist

Another Sunday and another bridal shower that's just like the one last week. It's always the same routine — eat lunch or dinner with the girls, play some party games and then shower the bride with gifts. You almost groan when a shower invitation comes in the mail, dreading the humdrum familiarity of the event.

Relief may be on the horizon, as more couples-to-be are bidding adieu to the traditional bridal shower in favor of something cooler, hipper and altogether more fun. Some showers are going coed, mixing men and women, while others are shifting into a simpler, more intimate gear, limiting invitations to only the closest friends and family.

Today's wedding shower is designed to suit the couple — outdoor adventures for the sporty, evening outings for the hipsters, or a trip to the spa for those who prefer to indulge themselves in some good, old-fashioned pampering.

Not sure where to start? Here are some ideas for the nontraditional wedding shower, courtesy of the party experts at Martini & Rossi:

- Pamper yourselves in a spa. Gather a small group for a luxury-filled day of massages, pedicures and manicures, facials and other therapeutic treatments at a nearby resort or spa. Serve gourmet munchies and light, refreshing beverages like sparkling wine, instead of the more traditional champagne. Guests can give towels, sheets or spa gift certificates.

- Grill up some fun. A backyard can be a fun — and economical — locale for a spring and summer coed-style wedding shower. You can stick to the basics, like hot dogs, hamburgers and wings, or take the party upscale with gourmet grilling of fruit, chicken or turkey breasts and more. Add outdoor games like badminton, volleyball or softball, and there's no shortage of fun for all. Guests can shower the couple with beach gear, grilling utensils or sports equipment like a badminton set, tennis rackets or golf clubs.

- Step out. Treat the bride, groom or both to a night on the town. Make reservations at a favorite restaurant, or order tickets for the theater or a concert. Guests can give gift certificates to restaurants, luggage or city guides as gifts.

- Explore the Great Outdoors. For the thrill-seeking couple, try something adventurous. Hit the waves for some scuba diving snorkeling, sailing or skydiving. Land lovers can find their hearts' desire hiking, horseback riding or spelunking. Hire a guide to ensure the outing stays safe. End the day at a casual restaurant or with a picnic at a campground. Guests can give gifts like fitness equipment, a snorkeling set or outdoor sports gear.

Shower Etiquette

It's a myth that all female guests invited to the wedding should attend the shower. All shower guests should be invited to the wedding, but not everyone invited to the wedding needs a shower invite. Invite bridesmaids, relatives, the bride-to-be and her fiancé's close girlfriends, and her mother and future mother-in-law's friends. If the bride doesn't know some of her fiancé's female friends, you aren't obligated to invite them to the shower. Consult the bride-to-be if you're unsure.

Fine Jewelry Amplifies Wedding Excitement

Themed weddings are all the rage today and brides are dressing the part. According to Helena Krodel, spokesperson for the Jewelry Information Center, a nonprofit trade association in New York, "Fine jewelry enhances all the special details of a theme wedding, like icing on a wedding cake." When worn during the wedding, fine jewelry holds the essence of the bride and acts as a talisman in celebration of that precious union for years to come. Here are some of the favorite themed weddings of today and the jewelry that epitomizes them.

MEDIEVAL ROYALTY

Do you want to be the belle of the ball? If throwing an elegant overstated party, the wedding attire should be out of a fairytale. Brides may choose among breath-taking tiaras like Karen Karch's rose cut diamond and white gold version, complete with French hook earrings that double as tiara charms. Kwiat's crisp white diamond model is as breath-taking as the bride herself. A pair of sparkling chandeliers dripping with white topaz briolette gemstones is an affordable alternative by Robin Rotenier. A matching crown pendant, inspired by chateau gates in France, is regal when strung with faceted small rhondell beads in pink tourmaline or sapphire (for her something blue).

SEASIDE AND SUNNY

A beautiful wedding is in the forecast. Ladies in breezy dresses are easily accessorized with Jane Gordon's earrings and single pendants in bright sun-kissed gemstones like citrine, blue topaz and peridot. Perfect thank-you gifts for flower girls and junior bridesmaids are layered nostalgic charm necklaces. As a gift, offer one personalized charm to each attendant, which can be added on and treasured for years to come. Pendant layering is gaining popularity among brides. Crosses, Stars of David, lockets, initials or hearts are a great way to achieve impact in lieu of one large-scale necklace. Play up a beach wedding with jewels that celebrate the sea's little creatures. Ise Jewelry designer Anna Henriques has created bib necklaces and charm bracelets in yellow and white gold with sea horses, shells and starfish encrusted with petite gems which sound like wind chimes when worn and catch the flickering sun light on that special day.

THEMED weddings are enhanced by fine jewelry. Items like crowns and hair brooches make a Medieval wedding celebration more memorable and dramatic.

BRIGHT LIGHTS, BIG CITY

With a short wedding dress for her and a black suit and satin tie for him, big "bling" jewelry is just what the wedding ordered. For the bride who is anything but traditional and holds a keen sense of style, there are large yet slim crosses by Cassis in yellow and white gold. M+J Savitt offers a petite white gold Star of David bracelet with pristine pavé white diamonds. A single strand of large grey Tahitian pearls by Mikimoto looks stunning and mysterious. For men, Dior offers a solid 18-karat yellow gold watch, which can add big splash to the serious black ensemble. Daniel Espinosa's sterling silver jewelry epitomizes modernity; his cameo, which hangs from a multi-strand chain, is an unusual bridal favorite. Elizabeth Blair's South Sea pearl cluster brooch is perfect for pinning in the "V" of your décolletage, on the top of the veil as a headpiece, or as a hair adornment.

RUSTIC COUNTRY CHARM

Country and western weddings warrant feel good attire like fine jewelry in sterling-silver accented with materials of the earth, such as turquoise. Designers like Relios have created jewelry in this spirit: a filigree heart pin in sterling-silver openwork, a Western scroll cuff that is thin and intricate, or a pair of Western chandelier cross earrings with tiny turquoise spheres that swing while the bride does the two-step. Suzy Landa's 18-karat matte yellow gold earrings embedded with bezel set diamonds are tiny replicas of lassos.

The most important step when shopping for fine jewelry is to purchase from a reputable jeweler. Look for a retailer who is a member of a professional trade association, such as Jewelers of America (JA), who is required to maintain high ethical standards and is provided with ongoing education.

How to Plan the Perfect Honeymoon

For many couples, planning a honeymoon is just as important as planning the wedding itself. Regardless of where you plan to go, there are some things you should do and some ideas you need to know to make it a memorable experience.

First, you must decide on a budget. If money is not an issue for you, bon voyage! However, if you're like most couples getting married, you're already paying for more than you anticipated. Establish a budget, and use it as a guide. You may also want to consider using a honeymoon registry service like the free one provided by The Honeymoon, www.thehoneymoon.com. Honeymoon registries are a hot new trend because they allow wedding guests to contribute toward specific elements of your honeymoon. With couples getting married older these days, many have no need for additional crock pots, blenders and toasters. That's why shore excursions, parasailing, spa services or tours can all make great wedding gifts.

The honeymoon budget takes on a whole new meaning when you decide to do a "destination wedding," another hot trend. These are gaining popularity as more couple decide to forego the average $20,000 wedding price tag. "These are especially popular with second marriages," according to Donna Ennis of GettingRemarried.com, a popular resource for people getting remarried. The first step in planning a destination wedding is to find a travel agent who specializes in honeymoons and destination weddings. This person will help you begin the process of selecting the location to get married in. This is the first priority in planning a destination wedding because legal requirements for marriage vary by destination. After deciding on a budget, you need to figure out where you would like to go. If you and your spouse want the same type of honeymoon experience, no problem. However, if one of you wants adventure and the other wants to relax in the sun, you need to find a destination that can satisfy you both.

Once you establish a budget and you know where you want to go, you need to decide whether you want an all-inclusive package or if you would prefer to be on your own a little more. For those with tight budgets, an all-inclusive honeymoon has the advantage of one all-inclusive package price. This includes most activities at both all-inclusive resorts and on cruises, though there may be things that are not included. Again, these make great gift items for your honeymoon registry. However, if you wish to be on your own to take in more of the surrounding culture and area, then you may be better off creating "your own" experience.

Now it's time to book and pay for this trip. Many honeymoon suppliers offer specials for early booking. Packages that include air often can offer significant savings because these suppliers buy airline seats in bulk at a discount and then package hotel, and sometimes car rentals to give you significant value. Usually these packages need to be purchased from a honeymoon specialist travel agent.

Honoring the Bride-to-Be

If you are a bridesmaid or a maid of honor, you'll have lots of wedding day duties. One of them is planning the bridal shower. But, no one says you have to throw a shower. If the bride doesn't want one, don't have it. If you want to "shower" her with attention, suggest dinner, spa massages or an outdoor activity like a hike or picnic.

Don't Take Chances with Your Honeymoon

The last thing you want after your wedding is to have something to worry about on your honeymoon. That's why it's more important than ever to set aside some time as you pack your swimsuit, hiking boots and camera, to make sure that you carefully consider travel insurance.

Here are some reasons to include travel insurance in your vacation planning:

TRIP CANCELLATION AND INTERRUPTION

Your vacation investment is at risk.

The cost of your trip may not be refunded in the event you have to cancel or cut your trip short.

Following are some of the reasons cruise, tour and travel package customers lose some or all of their vacation investment:

- Personal sickness or injury
- Sickness, injury or death of an immediate family member

- An act of terrorism
- Adverse weather or natural disaster
- Jury duty
- Financial default of travel supplier

Travel insurance, which includes trip cancellation and interruption coverage, is one way to plan for such unforeseeable circumstances.

SICKNESS, ACCIDENT AND MEDICAL EVACUATION

During your trip, you may need to see a doctor, have a prescription filled, receive care at a hospital or deal with an unexpected emergency. Remember: Some health plans don't cover illnesses or injuries incurred away from your hometown. Some plans will cover such expenses but at a reduced rate. Most health plans do not cover medical evacuation, which can cost $25,000 or more. The Emergency Medical Expense Coverage included with travel insurance can help protect you against unforeseeable circumstances. In addition, travel insurance plans include emergency medical evacuation and the round-the-clock expert support you'll need to handle an emergency, if you are traveling abroad.

CRITICAL FOR INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL

If your plans take you out of the U.S., there are some additional things you should consider. Today, international travelers more than ever need knowledge and information to prepare and protect their well-being. HTH Worldwide, a travel insurance company based in Philadelphia, goes beyond the typical travel insurance offering. Their program includes global health and security services. Among other benefits, you receive breaking news and critical information pertaining to risk of crime and terrorism.

Before your next trip, carefully consider travel insurance. Policy pricing is based on your age and the cost of your trip. Generally, the pricing ranges from four to eight percent of your total trip cost. In today's turbulent travel environment, this is a small price to pay for peace of mind.

HTH Worldwide provides travel insurance services and global health and security information. For more information or for a free quote, visit www.travel-healthinsurance.com or call HTH Worldwide at (888) 243-2358.

Create a Successful Wedding Day Party

The wedding day is one of the most exciting and memorable days in a couple's life. The bride and groom want everything, from the gown to the flowers to the food served at the reception, to be perfect. Most of all, they want the memories of the big day to be special.

The entertainment provided at the wedding reception is critical in determining the success of the event. The choice of music for the reception can make or break the entire party. Regardless of whether you use a band or disc jockey, lively music and a personable bandleader or DJ can help build a mood and play songs that can get the guests dancing.

Hiring the right band or DJ for your wedding can be confusing. Asking good questions, knowing the right answers and getting all guarantees in writing will ensure the selection of reliable, reputable vendors. The following questions and answers, courtesy of Modern Bride magazine, can help you hire the best musicians for the reception.

1. Can I determine the quality of a band's performance by listening to a tape or viewing its video? If you like the sound on the tape and/or the way the band delivers on video, inquire about where you can see the group play at a showcase, an actual wedding or some other place where it is booked.

2. How can I be certain that the band I book will be the one at my wedding? It is essential to get the name of the band in writing on your contract.

3. Does the orchestra have

THE AFTER-WEDDING PARTY can be critical to the success of the big day. Be sure to plan ahead.

liability insurance? A reputable company will maintain such coverage. Most reception facilities require that the orchestra furnish them with a certificate of insurance.

4. Does the band take breaks? Most bands take a 15-minute break after a 45-minute set. Taped music can be arranged during the breaks or continuous music (at an extra charge) can be planned.

5. Are there additional charges for traveling time, playing during cocktails and overtime? Probably. Ask about that at your initial meeting, and be sure that those charges are clearly stated in your contract and understood before you sign it.

6. Is there a surcharge or sales tax? There is no sales tax on musical services, but there may be some surcharges (i.e. payroll, transportation). Be sure to ask.

7. Does the band have an extensive song list with selections that appeal to a wide range of guests? A good band will be able to play a range of music that spans the decades, from big band to Top 40 to Motown hits, as well as ethnic pieces.

8. Will the band members wear appropriate attire? Unless otherwise noted, and depending on the formality of the wedding, members should wear black tie.

9. Is there a way I can be sure the amplification will not be deafening? Tell the bandleader or DJ of your concern, so if this is not a place where the group has played before, he or she can check out the location to prepare ahead for any acoustical challenges that must be addressed to keep the decibels under control.

10. Does the bandleader or DJ act as master of ceremonies and coordinate the sequence of events at the reception, and if so, should I meet with mine about this before the wedding? The master of ceremonies is usually the bandleader or DJ, and you absolutely should have an in-person meeting to talk over the reception events.

Create Something Special for Your Guests

More and more, wedding guest lists include friends and family from nearly every corner of the country. Whether it's childhood chums, college cohorts or an aunt from Albuquerque, getting everyone you love to come together on your wedding day means someone (or several someones) will have to travel.

When Amy Romano, a spokesperson for Scottsdale, Arizona-based Xyron, Inc. — a product innovator for craft and hobby enthusiasts — got married nearly 10 years ago, the majority of her 123 guests happily made the short drive just as readily as they would drive to the mall. But that wasn't the case when her sister married last spring. Half or more of her guests took full-day car rides or flew across the country.

"Though many family members and friends made the trip, it was surprising to see what lengths they went to for a 30-minute ceremony and a host of corny wedding line dances," Romano says.

Of course, no one traveled just for the ceremony or even the line dances.

They traveled to celebrate a new husband and wife. Devotion like that is impressive, and worth acknowledging in a unique way. Let your far away, road weary guests know just how much you appreciate their efforts with a little something just for them.

Anyone can write a thank you note, buy a fruit basket or pay for a hotel room. But for something truly special, show your guests you appreciate them from the moment they arrive with a low-cost, personal and easy-to-make care package, a wedding guest travel tote filled with treats, important information and special mementos.

By combining simple crafting supplies with adhesive and image transfer products by Xyron, brides can create a functional, heart-felt keepsake for their out-of-town guests. Include snack foods, a personalized water bottle, distinctive notecards, and an array of map cards and local information, and your guests — well nourished and well informed — will be ready to celebrate in style!

Even though your wedding is without a doubt your special day, remember to acknowledge your traveling guests. Give them a gift they can use and cherish — a wedding guest travel tote filled with lots of special and useful keepsakes. With craft supplies and Xyron products, both of which can be found at your local craft and hobby stores like Jo-Ann's, Michael's, Hobby Lobby or AC Moore, you can easily create special, personalized gifts.

SHOW YOUR GUESTS you appreciate them from the moment they arrive at your wedding with a low-cost, personal and easy-to-make care package.

Untangling 'The Knot'

Weddings are full of their own language and lingo. Some are easy to understand, like "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue" or "getting hitched." Getting married has long been referred to as "tying the knot." But do you know what that phrase means? According to some historians, this expression can be traced back to ancient Rome, when the bride traditionally wore a girdle that was tied in knots. After the wedding, it was the duty of the groom to untie the girdle. Others believe the phrase is more closely associated with ancient "handfasting" ceremonies, which involved tying a cord or ribbon around the wrists of the bride and groom, thus binding them together for life.

unique style. Select one whose arrangements you like and who can offer helpful, creative ideas about bouquets, corsages and centerpieces.

- Decide on a bakery — Select a bakery based on the varieties of the cakes offered and the look of previous work. Ask for a taste of the different types of cake offered, and check if the bakery will be able to create the design that you want.

- Select formalwear — Whether it's a basic tuxedo or a top hat and tail coat, formalwear completes the look of the wedding party. Select a formalwear provider who offers the style you want, has a variety of sizes available to fit all of the male attendants, and offers a large selection of bow ties and cummerbunds or vests.

- Order invitations — Invitations come in many different styles, so you will have a number of books to look through. Decide on a design that best suits the wedding, based on its formality, the time of day and the wedding colors. A stationery professional can help them with this decision.

With these important decisions made, you only have a few things left to do, like selecting favors, writing a wedding bulletin and buying thank-you gifts for your attendants.

You are now well on your way to the wedding of your dreams.

Grooming Yourself to be a Great Groomsman

Your friend comes over to tell you he finally proposed to his girlfriend. Then he pops the question to you, "I'd like you to be a groomsman." Refrain from wrinkling your face in disgust or confusion. Here's the lowdown on how you'll help out your buddy:

Pre-wedding activities: You'll attend the engagement party and rehearsal dinner.

You'll help plan the bachelor party and fend off the bride's interrogations about the festivities.

Attire: You'll pay for your own tux. You can rent one but be sure to get it fitted prior to the wedding.

Stress: You'll keep the groom cool with some pep talks and male outings. Help make his day memorable and stress-free by taking care of anything he needs you to do.

The ceremony: You'll

DECORATING THE newlyweds' getaway car is one of the groomsman's duties.

usher guests to their seats, perhaps. Guests will approach you with questions such as the restroom location. You may escort a bridesmaid down the aisle. And of course, you'll pose for photos.

The reception: You'll be introduced to all the guests, perhaps with the bridesmaid you escorted down the aisle. You'll dance with the bridesmaids or single female guests.

The getaway car: You'll decorate the honeymoon getaway car with streamers, soap, shaving cream or plastic soda bottles. Pop a romantic musical mix into the tape player for their enjoyment. And check to make sure the newlyweds' luggage is stashed in the trunk.

Thank the Ones Who Make The Wedding Special

In the weeks prior to the actual wedding ceremony, the bride's house will start to look like it does at Christmas. Packages and boxes of all shapes and sizes from various guests and well wishers will be arriving daily. In this time of excitement, organization is needed to keep track of who sent what gift.

One of the most important tasks that the bridal couple must complete is the overwhelming job of writing thank-you notes to all who sent gifts. The job of sending these notes is so time-consuming, because they must be written; a verbal thank you is not enough. The only verbal note that can be sent is a telegram, which can get costly when sending to a large number of guests.

Wedding gifts are given to both the bride and groom. When writing a thank-you note, be sure the signature reflects both of them. Writing the notes is not just the task of the bride, so be sure to put the groom to work. One idea is for the groom to write to his friends and the bride to hers. It is fine to sign only one name, so long as the writer says, for example, "Tad and I thank you for the wonderful toaster."

Make sure the gift is specifically mentioned in the note, keeping in mind that monetary gifts should never be referred to by dollar amount. A guest should be able to see that the couple appreciated, as well as remembered, the gift that was given to them.

The note should say exactly how the gift will be used. Additionally, if the gift needed to be returned, either because it was a duplicate or it simply could not be used, never inform the sender; a simple thank you is enough.

Be prompt in sending thank-you notes. Although it is perfectly acceptable to send a thank you up to three months after the wedding, couples should start writing before the wedding for gifts received in advance. This eliminates a lot of work and informs guests that the gifts were received and not lost during shipping.

Finally, couples should share any special memories they have of their guest from the wedding. Not only will they be thanking the guest for the gift, but most importantly, they'll be thanking him or her for coming to and celebrating the happy occasion with them.

Five Secrets to Create Lasting Romance

Your wedding and your honeymoon epitomize what romance is all about. Sure, you may not be wearing a white dress or a bikini once you return to the normalcy of everyday life. But that's no reason to let the romance fizzle. Some luxurious lotions and notions can arouse both your senses and your desires and help you create the perfect mix of romance and passion. They can help you open your heart and experience that intense, deep emotion of love and romance.

To help you get started, Yves Rocher, a leader in botanical beauty and personal care products, offers the following simple steps for creating your own love sanctuary at home:

1. After a long day at work, slip into something more comfortable. Having something soft and light against your skin will rejuvenate your spirit and help you both get in the mood for a romantic evening.

2. Set the mood. The sensual glow of candles can make any setting romantic. Try the Yves Rocher Soothing Aromatherapy Candle from the Pure Aromatics Serenity collection to create a peaceful oasis with the beneficial aromas of essential oils.

3. Leave behind stress by treating your partner to a therapeutic massage. Look for an aromatic massage cream like Pur Désir de Lavande Massage Cream which offers Captivating the ideal texture and relax-

Simple solutions can help reduce expenses

Having a wedding has become extremely expensive. It is difficult for the bridal couple to overcome the high cost of getting married.

Once upon a time, it was just assumed that the bride's family was to pay for "everything" (including the ceremony and reception), while the groom's family paid for the rehearsal dinner.

These days, the division of expenses has changed greatly.

The bridal couple pays for most of the cost themselves, and the parents contribute whatever they can.

Before booking a reception hall, ordering flowers and buying gowns, the couple must create a budget. Suzanne Kresse, author of "Secrets of Successful Brides" (St. Martin's), suggests that, when planning a budget, couples should allow an additional 25 percent more money for extras that they have yet to come across, but that are bound to come up.

To help keep costs down, Kresse offers some simple ways to save on wedding expenses:

- Trim the guest list—shaving off five to 10 names can save a lot of money.
- Consider having fewer attendants in your bridal party.
- Make your honeymoon plans when special air-fare programs are advertised.

Celebrity Scoop

Amy Jo Johnson

Checking in with Amy Jo Johnson
By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

After her "Felicity" character's relatively dark days, Amy Jo Johnson is glad to lighten up.

The young actress, who first found TV fame as the Pink Ranger in "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers," is back in series work - and crime-fighting mode - as the newest addition to "The Division."

The Sunday-night Lifetime police drama now is in its fourth season, and Johnson plays Stacy Newland, a spirited rookie hired by Captain Kate McCafferty (Bonnie Bedelia) to join her team of mainly female San Francisco detectives. Nancy McKeeon, Lisa Vidal, Taraji P. Henson and Jon Hamm continue as cast regulars.

"She still has a very optimistic attitude," Johnson says after filming a number of episodes as Stacy. "That's refreshing for me to play, someone who's very excited about what she's doing. When I was on 'Felicity,' my character, Julie, had all these devastating things happen to her, so it's really fun to be playing such a happy person."

The happiness may lessen once Stacy experiences the grittier side of her job. "She's a police-services aide right now," Johnson explains. "But when she becomes a detective, things will probably change." When they do, McCafferty will be watching Stacy even more closely, a notion that Johnson embraces: "I love working with Bonnie Bedelia. She's just so good, and most of my scenes on the show have been with her."

"It's very intimidating to meet her," Johnson adds, "but she's a very giving actress. I like to approach every job I do as being like school, something that will help me grow, so I feel very fortunate to be working with Bonnie. There's a lot that I can learn from her."

Birthdate: Oct. 6, 1970.
Birthplace: Cape Cod, Mass.
Other TV work: "Susie Q," "Killing Mr. Griffin," "Perfect Body," "Sweetwater," "Hard Ground."
Movie work: "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Movie," "Without Limits," "Cold Hearts," "Pursuit of Happiness," "Liar's Club," "Interstate 60," "Infested."
Hobbies: Writing music, playing guitar and singing. (Johnson recently released her first full-length CD, "The Trans-American Treatment.")
On using what she's learned from past roles in "The Division": "In my first episode, where I had to put a guy down on the ground, I guess a little bit of 'Power Rangers' came out there. I think I was wearing a pink sweater, too."

Featured 'Shelter Dogs' brings life to the screen

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Dog lovers, especially those who have rescued pooches from pounds, know the overwhelming sensation of an orphan hound staring into their eyes whimpering to be taken home.

If all goes well, dog and owner should live happily ever after. But when this doesn't happen, if a dog is aggressive or the family changes, the dog may have to go. But where?

HBO's "Shelter Dogs," airing Tuesday, Jan. 27, looks at Rondout Valley Kennels, a shelter in Accord, N.Y., where owner Sue Sternberg deals with animals other people can't handle. Sternberg's loving kindness is apparent each time she pets a dog. She puts dogs who pass her temperament test in adoption rooms, small rooms with furnishings so they can adjust to home life.

Sternberg reluctantly has dogs euthanized if they can't be adopted. Her reasoning is that it is more humane to have dogs put down than to have them go crazy in a small cage. She even takes them for a last meal at McDonald's before cradling them as the lethal injection takes hold. Sensitive viewers should know dogs die onscreen.

The film does a decent job of showing how painful it is for people to surrender pets and how hard Sternberg and her staff work to place dogs.

As admirable as Sternberg is, the documentary fails in more ways than it succeeds. It never explains how she manages to keep this large kennel running, as it seems to function on irregular donations. It also fails to explain Sternberg's background, other than she has always been a dog lover. She describes herself as, "I was born with an extra dog chromosome."

More than 5 million dogs are brought to shelters annually and roughly a quarter of them are placed in new homes. "Shelter Dogs" strives to make Rondout a universal theme, but without input from what other shelters do, this remains a slight profile of one shelter.

Douglas relishes family aspect of his Award

By John Crook
© Zap2it

The Cecil B. DeMille Award is a signal honor for anyone in the entertainment business, but Michael Douglas is doubly delighted to be this year's honoree during NBC's telecast of the 61st Annual Golden Globe Awards on Sunday, Jan. 25.

The Oscar-winning actor ("Wall Street") and producer ("One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest") is the very first second-generation DeMille honoree. In 1968, his father, Kirk Douglas, received the same award, which honors "outstanding contribution to the entertainment field."

"I get an extra kick because of my father, because I think it does give you kind of a sense of immortality," the younger Douglas says. "For him to be able to sit there and watch his son pick up a lifetime achievement award, there probably is a wonderful feeling for him - and certainly for me, too, because to be compared to someone like him is a lovely honor too - even if it's coming much, much too early for me," he chuckles.

It's true that, at 59, Michael Douglas is still young and active enough to make a "career achievement" award seem a little premature. Then again, he already stands with Laurence Olivier as the only two people in history to win Oscars in the categories of both best actor and producer of the best picture (Olivier scored both awards for his 1948 "Hamlet").

While he grew up surrounded by actors and acting, however, Douglas says today his entry into the entertainment field was anything but a forgone conclusion.

"My mother (Diana Douglas) is an actress as well," he explains. "She and my father met in acting school, so in a sense maybe you could say I was destined to become an actor. They met out of a love for acting. Growing up with my mother in Manhattan, I was struck by her love for doing theater and soaps, and my stepfather, who played a very big part in my life, was a Broadway producer.

"But having said that, I was undeclared in college into my junior year, so I was definitely a late bloomer. I had to declare something and, frankly, I think I picked theater mainly because I thought it would be easy. So it was a growth, a process... It wasn't something I wished for as a kid."

After attending the elite Choate School, Douglas was accepted at Yale, but passed on the Ivy League in favor of the University of California, Santa Barbara. It was among his first conscious attempts to keep his life on the right track, he says.

"To be honest, I just didn't much like the guy I was turning out to be in those prep schools back east," he reflects. "It was probably one of the first big decisions I ever made, this notion that, 'No, I have to change.'"

"My father probably thought it was mainly because I wanted to spend more time with him, but it had more to do with the brochure from this university campus by the sea," Douglas adds, laughing. "They had guys walking down the beach with girls in two-piece bathing suits, and that was in 1963, when you didn't see too many girls in two-piece bathing suits back east. Certainly not at Yale."

California also offered the young actor some new perspective via the burgeoning free speech movement and controversy over the Vietnam War. He returned to New York, consciousness raised, and paid his dues on stage and in a few early TV and film roles.

In 1972, Douglas bowed as Karl Malden's sidekick in "The Streets of San Francisco," an ABC hit that expanded his fan base. He had a year to go on his contract when he finally got a shot at a long-held dream project, producing a film version of Ken Kesey's biting novel "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

"Karl Malden, who has always been a mentor to me, and the producer, Quinn Martin, let me leave 'Streets' ... to go produce 'Cuckoo's Nest,' which was incredible, because I got an Oscar for that on my first time as a producer," Douglas says.

"To be able to share this award with my family during what is a very beautiful time for us just shows how my priorities have changed very dramatically. Now my wife comes first, and my family, and only then my work, and that is something I am pretty sure I couldn't have said 20 years ago. I encourage a lot of fathers to get your career squared away before having a family."

Lowe not likely to return to 'West Wing'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q Is there any chance we will see Rob Lowe back as Sam Seaborn on "The West Wing" now that his series "The Lyon's Den" appears to have gone belly up? -Gary Taylor, Saginaw, Mich.

A I haven't spoken to Lowe about this, but I'd say the chances of him rejoining "Wing" as a regular are remote at best, even if NBC officially cancels "The Lyon's Den."

Lowe says he left the NBC White House drama simply because there wasn't enough for his character to do, although there reportedly were some major salary issues as well. While "The West Wing" has taken a hit in the ratings, recently, most people chalk that up to the unexpected strong competition from ABC's "The Bachelor," not Lowe's departure - which means, in turn, that "Wing" producers are not likely to give the actor more money or screen time to return.

And you're right again. Coelho was Bono's third wife, in a union that lasted from 1982 to 1984.

Rob Lowe

Q Why have they removed Faith and Fred Yonas (Molly Price, Chris Bauer) from "Third Watch"? I think the actors who portray them are both excellent and I miss seeing them. -Nancy Richmond, Kokomo, Ind.

A "No one has 'removed' Molly and Chris," an NBC publicist replies. "At the moment, the story lines are focusing on other characters, but both of them are still with the show. That's just the nature of an ensemble show like this one."

Q What other TV shows or movies has Bradley Cooper ("Alias") appeared in? -J. Young, Columbus, Ohio.

A Philadelphia native Cooper, 29, who recently starred with Jason Priestley in the ABC Family movie "I Want to Marry Ryan Banks," previously had series roles in Fox's short-lived "The Street" and Discovery Channel's "Treks in a Wild World," and guest starred on "Sex and the City." Film credits include "Wet Hot American Summer," "My Little Eye," "Carnival Knowledge" and "The Last Cowboy."

USA follows the money in 'Traffic: The Miniseries'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

The old adage "follow the money" is nowhere more apropos than in the world of smuggling, where the trail of cash is literally the route that contraband - whether drugs or weapons or human beings - takes across land and sea.

In 1990, the BBC laid open the world of heroin smuggling in the miniseries "Traffic," which aired in the United States on "Masterpiece Theatre," a venue, at that time, more known for elaborate costume dramas and historical pomp and pageantry than grim modern realism.

A critical and commercial hit, the BBC production spawned "Traffic," a well-received 2000 feature film by director Steven Soderbergh, in which writer Stephen Gaghan Americanized British screenwriter Simon Moore's original tale.

In the years between 2000 and 2004, the world has seen a tectonic shift, as the war against drugs has given way to a global war against terrorism. In the wake of Sept. 11, 2001, USA Network and director/executive producer Stephen Hopkins have revived the smuggling concept with some new twists in "Traffic: The Miniseries," a three-part production airing Monday through Wednesday, Jan. 26-28.

Those who produce and distribute drugs are still at the heart of this original story, but this time the scope has expanded to include biological weapons and illegal aliens.

Like its predecessors, "Traffic: The Miniseries," filmed in and around Vancouver, Canada, takes several apparently independent stories and shows how seemingly disparate lives can become intertwined. Elias Koteas stars as Mike McKay, a DEA field agent working in Afghanistan who stumbles across a cache of Taliban drugs and strikes a deal with a local trafficker.

Concern over his actions strikes home in Seattle, where his wife, Carole (Mary McCormack), and teenage son, Tyler (Justin Chatwin) live.

As Carole struggles to understand her husband's actions, her neglected, rebellious son falls under the spell of the girl next door (Jennifer Rae Westley), who introduces him to the Seattle drug scene.

Meanwhile, bankrupt young businessman Ben Edmonds (Balthazar Getty) takes over his father's (Tony Musante) business, only to discover his father has been dealing with Ronny Cho (Nelson Lee), a figure in the Chinese underworld. Tempted by the profitability of working with Cho, Edmonds wanders into a world that, while glossy on the surface, hides a brutal trade in illegal aliens.

One of Cho's shipments contained the family of Adam Kadyrov (Cliff Curtis), a Seattle cabbie from Chechnya. When they fail to arrive as expected, Adam embarks on an increasingly dangerous and desperate quest to uncover their fate.

Also starring are Martin Donovan and Ritchie Coster.

The interweaving of drugs and terrorism in writer Ron Hutchinson's teleplay intrigued McCormack.

"It's terrifying, isn't it?" she says. "It's a real threat, something all Americans are afraid of. My apartment in New York City looks out over the Hudson River. It's amazing, all the ships that come in and out, and this is just one tiny nook and cranny of it.

"It's amazing that there's any way to control it, with all the ships coming in and all the trains and trucks. It seems a little out of control, which is something people are thinking about now, with Homeland Security and the Patriot Act."

"Drugs have been replaced by other things," Hopkins says. "Drugs have now become the tender to pay for smuggling. The same routes have been used for thousands of years, for slave trading, illegal smuggling of all types. Obviously, drugs became huge in this last century."

"Now smuggling immigrants and refugees is a multimillion-dollar business. It's a great business for all these middlemen and these so-called businessmen, because they never get their hands dirty. It's a very unpleasant and smart business, and of course, these people are treated like they don't matter at all. Sometimes it's cheaper to kill them than to deliver them."

The second season of the Baltimore-based HBO drama "The Wire" followed a similar arc, moving from a focus in drugs in season one to trafficking in young prostitutes in season two. Hopkins isn't surprised. "All this stuff in 'Traffic,' unfortunately, is all based on true stories. It's really sad."

Getty's character represents someone trying to profit from the trade without allowing himself to be sullied by it.

Mary McCormack plays a Seattle wife and mother dealing with fears over the fate of her husband, a DEA agent working in Afghanistan, in "Traffic: The Miniseries," premiering Monday on USA Network.

"I don't think he's a bad guy at all," Getty says. "He's confused. He wants the good life, and he wants to get there quick. The lines get blurred somewhere down the middle, but towards the end, he's starting to get a conscience about what's right and what's wrong."

"We all know about drugs; we all know about biological warfare; we all know about terrorism. But there's this underworld, this black market of human beings, and they're dying."

"Ben is probably the most relatable role," Hopkins says. "He's really very much of a straightforward yuppie. There are all sorts of shady types of business, and it's easy to make the wrong turn and get caught up in this. Businesswise, just on paper, it makes all the sense in the world. It's easy money."

"He thinks he can deal with it all, and he's horrified by himself, to a certain extent."

As for what he hopes viewers take away from "Traffic: The Miniseries," Hopkins says, "Maybe it just opens up the boundaries of looking at things. There are no real answers to a lot of these problems, so we don't pretend to give them."

Charles Osgood marks 25 years of 'Sunday Morning'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

For a quarter of a century, Sunday morning has been a CBS viewing destination.

The distinctively low-key newsmagazine "Sunday Morning" marks its 25th anniversary Sunday, Jan. 25. Host Charles Osgood will introduce excerpts from notable interviews, "Cover Story" features and essays. The 90-minute show also will recall the late Charles Kuralt, the "On the Road" correspondent who hosted "Sunday Morning" for its first 15 years.

"I guess you have to be named Charles to host this show," Osgood muses. The erudite, bow-tie-wearing veteran of the television and radio sides of CBS News notes that 25 years is "a long time for anything, but in broadcasting, it's just about forever. CBS just had its 75th anniversary, meaning that this show has been on for a third of the entire history of the network."

Condensing that into an hour-and-a-half is a challenge, but Osgood feels the "Sunday Morning" staff has a workable plan. "We're going to do a lot of 'Best of's,' some of the 'Cover Stories,' and other things that have been particularly memorable. For instance, there's the concert that we broadcast live when (pianist) Vladimir Horowitz returned to Moscow. Some of the people who were on the show and have now retired will be back."

Kuralt's spirit will loom large in the anniversary show "without a doubt," Osgood confirms. "We're going to talk about the beginnings of the broadcast, how Charles and (founding 'Sunday Morning' executive producer) Shad Northshield conceived it as a morning newspaper on the air. It has everything except the funnies - though it sort of has that, too." An example: the program's recent post-holiday segment on what to do with unwanted fruitcakes, including hurling them via catapult.

Three-time Emmy winner Osgood "never imagined" he would take over "Sunday Morning" from Kuralt in 1994. "I'm two years older than he was, so it didn't seem likely they would pick someone in that circumstance. Charles simply decided he didn't want to do it anymore, plus he was tired. We later found out he had lupus, but it hadn't been diagnosed at that point. It was just thought that this was taking too much out of him."

The "Sunday Morning" faithful haven't found much difference between the Kuralt and Osgood eras, as intended. The show has maintained its easygoing yet factual style, thanks also to regular contributors such as Rita Braver, Bill Geist and Martha Teichner. "For the program to have survived is an accomplishment," Osgood reasons, "but I think it has done more than just survive. It really has thrived. We're more than holding our own, as far as the competition is concerned."

There will be more competition soon. Not only will "Sunday Morning" continue to face NBC's "Meet the Press" and Fox's "Fox News Sunday," but ABC recently announced plans to get back into the Sunday-morning fray by reviving weekend editions of "Good Morning America."

Regardless, it never will be hard to tell "Sunday Morning" apart from its rivals, given trademarks such as its closing, wordless nature sequence. "When viewers send e-mails, that's one of the things they almost always single out," Osgood reports. "There are probably a lot of reasons for that, but one is that nobody else does it. Unless you see something like it on a 'National Geographic' special, it just doesn't happen."

Longtime host Charles Osgood (pictured) celebrates the 25th anniversary of the CBS newsmagazine "Sunday Morning" with a special retrospective edition Sunday. A tribute to former host Charles Kuralt will be included in the 90-minute anniversary show.

Birth of an American tradition recalled

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

Believe it or not, there was a time when the Super Bowl was not the spectacle it is today.

On Jan. 15, 1967, the Kansas City Chiefs and the Green Bay Packers, the champions of the fledgling American Football League and the established National Football League, respectively, were slated to play at the Los Angeles Coliseum in Super Bowl I, then known as the NFL-AFL World Championship Game.

On this day, fans could walk up to the box office and purchase tickets for between $6 and $12. Two networks, CBS and NBC, broadcast the game all over the country, except Los Angeles, where it was blacked out because of the 30,000 seats that went unsold. There was no media day, and ad time on the game telecast sold for a paltry $42,000 per 30-second block.

The outcome of the game was almost an afterthought, a 35-10 Green Bay rout, but the event would go on to become an American tradition that has transcended sports.

Its roots are recalled in a new HBO documentary, "The Wild Ride to Super Bowl I," airing Monday, Jan. 26, through vintage footage and interviews with Chiefs owner Lamar Hunt, coach Hank Stram, and players Fred Williamson, Len Dawson and Mike Garrett. Packers Max McGee, Jerry Kramer and Bill Curry also appear.

Executive producer Ross Greenburg explains that the game came at a time when a merger had just been announced between two warring leagues. "The architects of the game were (NFL Commissioner Pete) Rozelle and Lamar Hunt, who not only merged the leagues, but also saw this as an opportunity to create a major championship between the two leagues. But the two leagues were warring at the time, and (the merger) was the peace treaty that ended it all, but the war had not officially ended ... and the war would be played out on the battlefield in the L.A. Coliseum - the first war - and there was a lot at stake."

That included the reputation of the established NFL, whose team owners put enormous pressure on Packers coach Vince Lombardi to embarrass the upstart Chiefs. "Vince Lombardi and the Green Bay Packers were in a complete no-win situation," Greenburg says. "If they lost, they would suffer the ultimate embarrassment and (earn) the scorn of their contemporaries and the other owners - you know, the old line: George Halas, Wellington Mara, Art Modell - and all of NFL fans across the country that really saw the AFL as a bush league. And on the other side of the coin, you had the rebellious AFL, who wanted to, after many years of frustration, prove themselves on the field through the Kansas City Chiefs."

Such pressure, naturally, did nothing to brighten Lombardi's cantankerous demeanor in the weeks leading up to the game. "He was like a caged animal before the game," Greenburg notes, "and the Green Bay Packer players understood it, and they had to deal with him. In this documentary, they're very vocal about it. Boyd Dowler and others in the docu, Max McGee, they all said that the coach was really uptight."

Angry, actually. "And I guess when he was pissed off, they had to deal with three-hour practices and some intense workouts, worse than what even they were used to," Greenburg says.

Personality issues affected the Chiefs as well, as Fred "The Hammer" Williamson took to talking trash in the days prior to the game. "You had Fred Williamson," Greenburg says, "who was the brash African-American cornerback for Kansas City, who was doing a Namath guarantee two years prior to Namath. He was way before his time."

"(His teammates) were nervous that he had become fodder for the Green Bay Packers in pinning up headlines from newspaper articles written about Fred Williamson's statements in the press. So they were worried about it. And ultimately, I guess the Packers had the last laugh as Williamson lay stretched out on the Coliseum grass, having knocked himself out toward the end of the game. So the Packers did have that last laugh."

So did some of his teammates on the Chiefs. "Yeah, they were like, 'Oh well,'" Greenburg says. "And of course, Williamson denies being knocked out, even though it's visible on the film."

"Sacramento Kings at Dallas Mavericks" Sunday, Jan. 25 (ABC, 1 p.m. ET): Some NBA teams prefer to play it close to the vest. Not the Kings and Mavericks, who meet today in Dallas. Sacramento is the league's highest scoring team, thanks in part to sharp shooter Peja Stojakovic and their NBA-best shooting percentage from three-point range. Dallas is right behind the Kings in team scoring, led by versatile Dirk Nowitzki's 20 points per game. Three other Mavs' starters also average in double digits.

"Philadelphia Flyers at Washington Capitals" Sunday, Jan. 25 (ESPN2, 7 p.m. ET): You can't begin the healing process until the cancer is removed, so why is Jaromir Jagr still a Washington Capital? That is probably on the minds of some Caps' fans, who blame the one-time superstar for Washington's woeful play this season. The Caps have found the high-priced Jagr to be untradeable thus far; even their opponent tonight, the normally spend-happy Flyers, have no interest. But never say never - the trade deadline is more than a month away.

"Australian Open, Men's Final" Saturday, Jan. 31 (ESPN, 10 p.m. ET): The tennis world's first Grand Slam tournament winds down Down Under with the men's singles final in the Australian Open. The event's early-year timing plus demanding climate conditions annually present lesser-known players a chance to advance this far. That combination worked well for 31st-seed Rainer Schuettler last year - that is, until he met Andre Agassi, who stormed to his eighth Grand Slam title, becoming the oldest man ever to win a Slam singles crown.

Soap Talk

Jeanne enjoys jousting with Jess

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

Thirty years ago, Jeanne Cooper joined "The Young and the Restless" as wealthy Katherine Chancellor, the manipulative grande dame of Genoa City.

"Oh, she has changed and mellowed through the years," Cooper says. "But after everything she's gone through - the husbands, the alcoholism, kidnappings - you would hope she would come out better in the end."

One of the story lines that Cooper most fondly remembers is when she played the dual roles of Marge and Katherine.

"It was a challenge in so many ways, and one of my favorite times on the show," Cooper says. "Marge had to pretend to be Katherine, so I was playing a character pretending to be another character, and there was just so much that went into that. I wish they would bring Marge back. She was so fun to play. And I think it's high time Katherine thanked the woman for all she did."

This past year has been one of revelations. The most important being the discovery that her nemesis, Jill Abbott (Jess Walton), was her daughter.

"Who knew after all of these years? But if it gives me a chance to work with Jess, then all the better," Cooper says. "She and I have had a lot of fun over the years, and she makes my job a pleasure."

Dear Candace: I'm a huge fan of James Reynolds, who played Abe Carver on "Days of Our Lives." He was one of the few on the show who actually had some common sense. Can you tell me what he's doing, and if there's a chance he could come back to the soap? -Meredith in Florida.

Dear Reader: Reynolds spent Christmas with the troops on a USO tour with "Days" actors Alison Sweeney, Kyle Brandt, Eric Winter and "All About the Andersons" star John Amos.

This was Reynolds' third Christmas with the troops. This holiday, they spent time in the Persian Gulf where they met with service members, posed for pictures and signed autographs.

It would take a miracle for Abe to return to "Days," but it could happen.

Shelter Dogs

A two-year period at a rural animal shelter in New York's Catskill Mountains is documented in Cynthia Wade's new film. Owner Sue Sternberg and her staff succeed in placing some stray or unwanted dogs in atmospheres of warmth and devotion, but others don't find homes — forcing Sternberg to face some of the ethical dilemmas of her job, such as whether to let them stay at the shelter forever or to euthanize them.

7 p.m. on FAM

Movie: Anywhere but Here

Director Wayne Wang's 1999 comedy-drama boasts fine performances by Susan Sarandon and Natalie Portman as a mother and daughter with a challenging relationship, to say the very least. They set out on a cross-country trip to Los Angeles, where the elder woman hopes to establish a new life and career despite her offspring's strong doubts. Bonnie Bedelia ("The Division") co-stars.

7:30 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

I'm With Her

The Academy Awards are a month away, but they're very much on Alex's (Teri Polo) mind in the new episode "Party of Two." She's so anxious over whether she'll get a nomination, Patrick (David Sutcliffe) tries to calm her down by taking her to a relatively isolated spa. Once they're away from it all, Patrick becomes as curious as Alex to know whether she's been nominated.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Jack (Kiefer Sutherland) remains allied tenuously with the Salazars (guest stars Joaquim de Almeida and Vincent Laresca) in trying to acquire the virus in the new episode "Day 3: 11:00PM — 12:00 Midnight." President Palmer (Dennis Haysbert) learns his ex-wife Sherry's (Penny Johnson Jerald) latest motivation for wanting to help him.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

According to Jim

Dana (Kimberly Williams-Paisley) gets an unlikely boyfriend in the new episode "Dana Dates the Reverend," directed by series star Jim Belushi. The new beau (guest star Chris Elliott) is a member of the clergy, who attracts her by giving her a job tip. The romance gives Jim (Belushi) endless opportunities for one-liners while Cheryl (Courtney Thorne-Smith) struggles to keep the peace.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The Guardian

The driver (guest star Brent Jennings) of a city bus that crashed — killing a number of passengers — is represented by Nick (Simon Baker), who learns that a racial incident aboard the vehicle may have led to the tragedy, in the new episode "Amends." Alvin (Alan Rosenberg) fears Nick isn't taking his recovery program seriously enough when Nick tries to patch things up with the people he has hurt lately.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

One Tree Hill

Fed up with Dan's (Paul Johansson) insistence regarding excellence in basketball, Nathan (James Lafferty) quits the team in the new episode "The Living Years." With more time on his hands, Nathan wants to spend as much of it as possible with Haley (Bethany Joy Lenz). Brooke (Sophia Bush) is concerned about Lucas' (Chad Michael Murray) intensifying friendship with Peyton (Hilarie Burton).

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Line of Fire

A school hostage crisis is personal for Jennifer (Julie Ann Emery), since her daughter (guest star Jaycee Porter) is a captive, in the new episode "Mother & Child Reunion." Malloy (David Paymer) takes action upon learning that a relative (guest star Polly Cusumano) was assaulted while working at his brothel.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

An attack on a psychiatrist who treats sex offenders sends Benson and Stabler (Mariska Hargitay, Christopher Meloni) after the so-called "Duct Tape Rapist" in "Mother." After the police detectives' quarry turns out to be innocent of the assault, their attention turns to a law student who works for the victim — and also may have been one of her patients.

The O.C.

With summer over, the gang heads for school in "The Heights." The bond between Ryan and Marissa (Benjamin McKenzie, Mischa Barton) has strengthened, but Luke (Chris Carmack) wants Marissa back. Though she shuns Seth (Adam Brody), Summer (Rachel Bilson) seethes over his relationship with Anna (Samaire Armstrong).

Sandy (Peter Gallagher) is offered a case that would pit him against Kirsten's (Kelly Rowan) father.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Angel

A psychiatric-ward fugitive (guest star Navi Rawat, "House of Sand and Fog") is counseled by Angel (David Boreanaz) as she seeks her childhood tormentor in the new episode "Damage." She's revealed to be a vampire slayer by an aspiring watcher (guest star Tom Lenk, "Buffy the Vampire Slayer"), and that information gives Spike (James Marsters) the incentive to help her himself.

8 p.m. on HALL

Movie: Jane's House

James Woods reteams with director Glenn Jordan — who guided the actor to an Emmy win for the 1986 movie "Promise" — for this well-acted 1994 drama about a recent widower who struggles to adjust to his new relationship with a former tennis star (Anne Archer). San Francisco Giants outfielder Barry Bonds appears as himself.

8 p.m. and USA

Traffic

The new three-part drama miniseries about the international drug trade concludes with Mike (Elias Koteas) concerned about a shipment of smallpox that is headed for Seattle — where his wife and son (Mary McCormack, Justin Chatwin) are. Upon learning how his wife and daughter really died, Adam (Cliff Curtis) seeks revenge. Ben (Balthazar Getty) tries to persuade gangster Ronny Cho (Nelson Lee) to go legit.

8:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

The murder of a businessman in his own home reveals that he was jobless — and supporting himself via a huge bank-account deposit — in "Identity." Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) trace the money to a Harlem senior citizen whose stolen identity is linked to the deposited funds.

9 p.m. on 19-PBS

Great Performances

The esteemed Paul Taylor Dance Company returns to this program with the new episode "Dance in America: Acts of Ardor: Two Dances by Paul Taylor." The first work, "Black Tuesday," recalls the Depression-era escape provided by movies and popular music of the period. Then, "Promethean Fire" — thought by some to be Taylor's reaction to the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks — incorporates Bach music and Stokowski orchestrations.

9 p.m. on TNT

Movie: Stir of Echoes

Kevin Bacon stars as a man whose skeptical mind is opened to the supernatural world after he allows himself to be hypnotized. He becomes haunted by the murder of a teenage girl and his quest to solve the mystery puts him at odds with his wife (Kathryn Erbe) and neighbors, especially when he begins tearing apart his house looking for the body. Ileana Douglas and Zachary David Cope also star in this 1999 horror film.

9 p.m. on HBO

Tru Calling

Tru (Eliza Dushku) gets an appeal from a firefighter to go back a day and save his life, which he lost while trying to rescue two youngsters from a blaze in an apartment building, in "Putting Out Fires." In tracing his steps, she begins to fall for him, and her emotions could cloud her mission.

7 p.m. and BRAV

Movie: The Last Detail

Jack Nicholson gives one of his signature performances — and one of his most censoring sets of dialogue — in director Hal Ashby's earthy 1973 version of the Darryl Ponicsan novel. Nicholson and Otis Young star as Navy officers ordered to transport a younger sailor (Randy Quaid, in one of his earliest screen roles) from Virginia to a New Hampshire prison. They bond during the trek, but surprising twists lie ahead.

7:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Will & Grace

Oscar winner Mira Sorvino ("Mighty Aphrodite") guest stars in "Last Ex to Brooklyn" as a beautiful, savvy fashion-magazine editor who happens to be a former flame of Leo's (Harry Connick Jr.). Does this make Grace (Debra Messing) feel threatened? Not as much as another tidbit of information about the woman: She's the only female sex partner Will (Eric McCormack) has ever had. Megan Mullally also stars.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Survival Test: Dangerous Animal Encounters

If you thought Fox had gotten out of the business of the "When Animals Attack" brand of special, fuhgeddaboutit. This new offering compiles more footage of people — and in some cases, other animals — who find themselves at the mercy of vicious predators. Given a tiger's recent on-stage attack of magician Roy Horn in Las Vegas, many more people now know to expect the unexpected in such situations.

Grounded for Life

Claudia and Sean (Megyn Price, Donal Logue) are stunned to recognize the setting of an adult movie they watch in their hotel room in the new episode "All Apologies." The film was shot in their home, and they suspect Eddie (Kevin Fitzgerald Corrigan) of being involved — leading Claudia to ban him from the house forever.

Movie: Ghostbusters

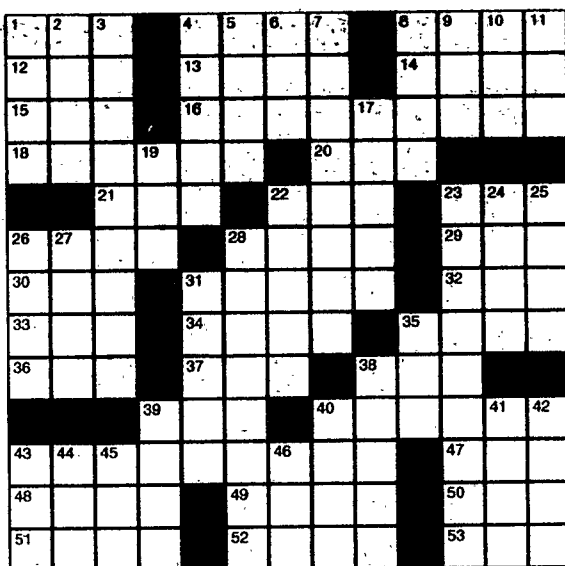

This spirited comedy was the summer blockbuster of 1984, and the years haven't diluted its dry wit. Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd, Harold Ramis and Ernie Hudson star as ghost exterminators who are quickly promoted from capturing the occasional poltergeist to saving the world when a powerful demon tries to take Manhattan.

Saturday Best Bets

4 p.m. on ESPN
College Basketball

After beginning his Duke career by going 38-47 in his first three seasons, Mike Krzyzewski never thought he'd reach 600 wins, let alone the milestone 600th he recently recorded. And with Chris Duhon and J.J. Redick leading another highly ranked Duke squad, many more await Coach K, even in a powerhouse ACC that includes B.J. Elder and Georgia Tech, who host Duke today.

6 p.m. and TBS

Movie: Something to Talk About

In this entertaining 1995 comedy-drama movie, pretty woman Julia Roberts plays a Southerner with plenty to be hot and bothered about: Her husband (Dennis Quaid) cheats behind her back. But when Roberts' character tries to get back at her philandering husband, she discovers family ties are a formidable obstacle to her plans for revenge. Kyra Sedgwick and Gena Rowlands co-star.

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC
Movie: The Parent Trap

Lindsay Lohan ("Freaky Friday") plays the Hayley Mills part — make that parts — in this 1998 remake of the 1961 Disney family classic. Twins separated as babies meet at camp and decide to switch places in an effort to get their long-divorced parents (Dennis Quaid, Natasha Richardson) back together. But the clock is ticking: Dad is about to marry a thoroughly unlikely woman (Elaine Hendrix). Lisa Ann Walter also stars.

7 p.m. and DSC

Dog Show

The biggest prize of any competition on the circuit — $50,000 and an SUV — is offered by the AKC/Eukanuba National Championship, televised from Long Beach, Calif., and simultaneously airing on Discovery Channel. Of course, the owner of the winning dog will be the one who really benefits from his or her canine's victory, but there will be a lot of rivals ... 3,000 of them. Ron Reagan is the host of the three-hour telecast.

7 p.m. on TNT
Movie: The Matrix

A computer programmer and hacker (Keanu Reeves) discovers that his entire reality is virtual in this 1999 sci-fi tale. He's recruited by a band of freedom fighters to battle the mysterious program that's created this unreal world and return humanity to the real thing. Laurence Fishburne, Carrie-Anne Moss and Hugo Weaving co-star in the action- and effects-packed adventure.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Super Bowl's Greatest Commercials

Ask any advertiser: Some of the most expensive real-estate in television is found during the NFL's annual championship game, which traditionally draws an enormous audience. This special compiles many of the most famous ads introduced during past Super Bowls — some humorous, some poignant and some star-powered, but all calculated to grab viewers' attention when more TV sets are in use than at almost any other time.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"RADIO": In arguably his most challenging role since "Jerry Maguire," Cuba Gooding Jr. stars in the true story of a mentally challenged man who becomes the mascot of a football team. The coach (Ed Harris) and the players give nearly as much to "Radio" as he gives them, especially when some of the locals target him for harassment. Debra Winger makes a rare appearance as the coach's wife. Alfred Woodard and S. Epatha Merkerson ("Law & Order") also co-star in the inspiring, heartfelt tale. DVD extras: audio commentary by producer-director Mike Tollin, producer Brian Robbins and cinematographer Don Burgess; deleted scenes; outtakes; "making-of" documentaries.  (PG: AS, P, V)

"THIRTEEN": Young Nikki Reed became a movie-world sensation as co-writer (with director Catherine Hardwicke) and co-star of this drama about the link between two vastly different teenagers. The difficult home life of a studious young woman (the superb Evan Rachel Wood, "Once and Again") makes her easy prey for a troublesome peer (Reed), and the results are far from pretty. Holly Hunter does notable work as the Wood character's despairing mother. Jeremy Sisto ("Six Feet Under") also co-stars. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by

Video Vantage

Hardwicke, Reed, Wood and co-star Brady Corbet.  (R: AS, P, V)

"LE DIVORCE": Usually specialists in period pieces like "Howards End" and "The Remains of the Day," longtime filmmaking partners Ismail Merchant and James Ivory go contemporary with this Americans-in-Paris comedy-drama that boasts a very watchable cast. A woman (Kate Hudson) goes overseas to visit her pregnant sister (Naomi Watts), and gets involved with a relative (Thierry Lhermitte, "Until September") of her sibling's wayward husband. Glenn Close, Leslie Caron, Matthew Modine, Stockard Channing and Sam Waterston also appear in the film based on Diane Johnson's best seller. DVD extra: theatrical trailer.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"ALICE IN WONDERLAND: THE MASTERPIECE EDITION": Author Lewis Carroll's heroine (voice of Kathryn Beaumont) tumbles into a magical world of white rabbits, tea parties and Mad Hatters in a newly spruced-up version of the animated 1951 Disney classic, including the restored song "I'm Odd." The voices of various Wonderland residents are supplied by veteran character actors like Ed Wynn, Richard Haydn, Sterling Holloway and J. Pat O'Malley. DVD extras: "Virtual Wonderland Party"; "making-of" documentaries (one hosted by Mickey Mouse); sing-along songs. * (G)

"HOUSE OF THE DEAD": Inspired by a series of video games, this nasty thriller takes several college students to an island near Florida for an intended rave. They only find horror, thanks to zombies determined to make a meal out of the visitors. The targets seek shelter and weapons in an old house, which holds other terrors that make it a less-than-ideal refuge. Stars include Jonathan Cherry, Tyson Leitso and "B" movie fixture Clint Howard. DVD extras: audio commentary by cast and crew members; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; outtakes.  (R: AS, N, P, GV)

"GRIND": Aspiring skateboarding stars have a hard time keeping their minds focused on the sport while tailing their idol (Jason London) across the country. This comedy-drama generally is unremarkable except for the presence of appealing Adam Brody ("The O.C."). He plays one of the young buddies trying to make their own marks. The supporting cast includes Randy Quaid, Christopher McDonald ("The Perfect Storm") and comedian Bob Goldthwait. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by cast and crew members; music video.  (PG-13: AS, P)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"AMERICAN SPLENDOR" (Feb. 3): Harvey Pekar's cult-favorite comic book comes to life in this seriocomic film narrated by Pekar (who is portrayed by Paul Giamatti). (R: AS, P)

"THE FIGHTING TEMPTATIONS" (Feb. 3): To claim the inheritance that's due him, a New York advertising man (Cuba Gooding Jr.) has to form a choir. Beyonce Knowles also stars. (R: AS, P)

"LOST IN TRANSLATION" (Feb. 3): A fading movie star and a young wife (Bill Murray, Scarlett Johansson) spend time together in Tokyo in filmmaker Sofia Coppola's acclaimed comedy-drama. (PG-13: AS, P)

"IN THE CUT" (Feb. 10): A woman (Meg Ryan) becomes deeply involved with a police detective (Mark Ruffalo) investigating several murders in her neighborhood. (R and unrated versions: AS, P, V)

Choreographer Paul Taylor stages a cure for the Depression

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

For anyone who has never watched modern dance, assuming it is just too weird or highbrow, give Paul Taylor a chance.

Taylor, the United States' master modern dance choreographer, has received every major arts honor for good reason. At 73, he continues to deliver fun, wonderful entertainment. To relish what he can do with a bare stage and 16 dancers, tune into PBS' "Great Performances" presentation of "Dance in America: Acts of Ardor: Two Dances by Paul Taylor" Wednesday, Jan. 28 (check local listings).

Both of these pieces are quintessentially American. The first, "Black Tuesday," is set during the Depression. The second, "Promethean Fire," is a modern piece, which could take place at any time.

What sets Taylor apart is a sense of joy. He brings this ebullience to the stage with dances that burst with optimism. He had researched dances popular during the time when the stock market crashed, and listened to music from that era. Rather than reflect on this national disaster in somber tones and dirges, Taylor taps into the rarely considered upbeat spirit of the times.

The dance opens with 1931's "Underneath the Arches" and segues into many short pieces, ending with Bing Crosby crooning "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?"

The piece is a series of short dances, and dancers wear drab, patched dresses and pants fashioned to look dirty. Taylor captures the gritty determination of people who would rather eke out a living any way they could rather than whine about their hard luck.

"That's what I thought was so terrific about the people then," Taylor says from his home in Mattituck, Long Island. "They just buckled up and didn't seem to be terrified. Then again they didn't have (today's) news to make them terrified."

Taylor selected songs he could listen to repeatedly, and within 24 hours had choreographed "Black Tuesday." The dancing is a delightful combination of the very rudiments of jitterbuggers and the last vestiges of the flappers. The troupe's ballet and modern training shine, and because each dancer has a turn, no one is a true soloist.

Still, some images linger, such as Silvia Nevjinsky as a pregnant woman who is willing, as the song goes, "to even love a moron." And Orion Duckstein as a well-muscled pimp dancing with his three girls is also a standout.

"I was alive during the Depression," Taylor says. "I was just a baby in Washington, D.C., most of the time, so I remember things about it. I remember that my father had lost his job with Westinghouse. We weren't out on the street or anything. We didn't suffer that badly or have to sell apples."

"Even if I hadn't been alive during that period, you read about it and hear about it, and it became very clear that the entertainment in those days, people were flocking to escape the realities of life," he continues. "They wanted to see something upbeat."

Such determination and optimism is also evident in the next piece, "Promethean Fire." Indeed, when it premiered in 2001, many dance critics hailed it as Taylor's response to 9/11, which he denies.

The interpretation comes about because the dancers collapse onto each other and rise again. There is a phoenix motif in both pieces, but Taylor says he had no one story to tell in "Promethean Fire."

"I had hoped it would be more universal than about a specific event," Taylor says. "Like a lot of dances, it could be interpreted. It is a general thing about humanity and the different emotions and sometimes relationships that break up and get back together. I didn't want it to have a gloomy ending."

Set to Leopold Stokowski's opulent orchestration of Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D minor, the piece is dramatic from the start. All of the dancers wear black unitards, and are barefoot on a bare stage. As they gather and arms jut up, it is impossible for modern dance lovers to not evoke Martha Graham, whom Taylor danced with.

The special has a few minutes of Taylor talking, and reveals exquisite black and white photos of him as a young dancer with Graham. As "Promethean Fire" goes on, it proves what fine dancers are in his troupe.

At times, Taylor is a sculptor and the dancers are molded into his creation. When the sculpture comes to life, three ballerinas are all soft-rounded arms, delicately gliding across the stage. Just as quickly, swift, modern movements take over. A pas de deux is as classically lovely as any ballet company's. Most of all, what is to be savored is that it is vintage Paul Taylor.

Vintage Taylor, however, automatically means this is the most ephemeral of the arts, never intended to be framed by a small box. For watching dance as it happens is far different than watching it on television. "Sitting at home on the sofa is not quite the same" as being there, Taylor says.

Yet he is also well aware that television affords him a huge audience that may not otherwise see dance. Still, Taylor worries about his work being translated from a stage to a screen. He credits Matthew Diamond, who taped the show in May 2003 at the Edinburgh Festival Theatre in Scotland, for perfectly capturing the dances.

Choreographer Paul Taylor of PBS' "Dance in America: Acts of Ardor: Two Dances by Paul Taylor," a "Great Performances" presentation Wednesday.
